Johnson Doubles Draft Call

Further 50,000 Troops Committed to Viet Nam

Moscow Calls It 'Colossal Risk'

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio Wednesday night said President Johnson is taking "a colossal risk" in boosting United States armed strength in Viet Nam.

The radio reported the increase in U.S. conscription and possibly higher military expenditures, and said it forecast "a wide complex of measures which cannot but suggest the switching over of the country to a state of war."

Many Seek Ways To End Conflict

Moves for a negotiated end to the Viet Nam war were underway Wednesday in several capitals.

A Ghanaian envoy, Foreign Trade Minister Kwesi Armah, was reported to have conferred in Hanoi with North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, according to Moscow's Tass news agency.

TAKES LETTER

Armah took Ho a letter from Ghanaian President Kwame Nkrumah, who was a member of the British-backed Commonwealth peace mission that had hoped to discuss the Vietnamese crisis with Ho and other leaders. But the Communists rejected the mission.

There was no indication in the Tass report of the topics Armah and Ho covered.

In Belgrade, U.S. roving Ambassador Averell Harriman and

Indian Prime Minister Shastri met in quick succession with President Tito. Viet Nam was believed to have been their major subject.

Shastri and Tito, leaders of the neutralist bloc, both advocate immediate Viet Nam peace talks. Tito was considered likely

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Johnson announced Wednesday another 50,000 American combat troops for the Vietnamese war—raising the total to 125,000—and doubled the monthly U.S. military draft call to 35,000.

Additional troops will be needed later and sent and the U.S. Congress will be asked for more money to meet rising costs resulting from the Viet Nam crisis, Johnson said at a televised press conference.

LONG-AWAITED

The troop buildup to 125,000 compares with a peak Korean War commitment of 400,000 by the U.S. It formed the hard news in the long-awaited presidential report on a week's high-level review of Viet Nam policy.

There has been speculation that 200,000 American troops may be in the working war theatre by the end of the year.

MUTE IMPACT

Johnson's statement and replies reflected a desire to mute the impact of the rising American commitment.

He pledged a continuing dedication to seeking peaceful negotiations anywhere, any time despite the evidence that the Viet Cong insurgents, Communist North Viet Nam and China won't play ball except on their terms.

INEVITABLE

"We will not surrender and we will not retreat," he said at one point. "Once the Communists know, as we know, that a violent solution is impossible, then a peaceful solution is inevitable."

He said new U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is working out a program of more military and civilian aid from South Viet Nam.

Mortgage Action Launched

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mortgage foreclosure action has been launched in British Columbia Supreme Court here against the Vancouver Times Publishing Co.

R. Borden De Wolfe Investments Ltd. and J. F. De Wolfe, in a writ filed with the court, are seeking enforcement of foreclosure of a $380,000 mortgage made June 22, 1964.

The writ said the publishing firm, which owns the city's third daily newspaper, defaulted on payment of mortgage principal and interest which fell due June 1.

Jailbreakers Elude Police

EDMONTON (CP)—Police Wednesday hunted for a car reported stolen as they continued their search for two men who escaped Monday from the provincial jail at Fort Saskatchewan.

They maintained roadblocks and had watches set up at bus depots, railway stations, airports and Canada-United States border crossings.

Police said a 1964-model car was taken from a farmyard at Wetaskiwin, 35 miles south of Edmonton, where an abandoned truck, reported stolen at Fort Saskatchewan, was found.

Satisfaction—or New Strike

TWO-WEEK TRUCE BY B.C. MAILMEN

Postal workers on Vancouver Island and in Vancouver will continue to work for the next two weeks, but a new strike will start unless a satisfactory wage settlement is granted the unions in the interim report of Judge J. C. Anderson.

Judge Anderson, the federal commissioner probing the dispute, has promised his wage findings in 14 days, but his full report will take much longer.

BREATHING PERIOD

Vancouver letter carriers guaranteed the breathing period in the West Coast mail blockade by voting for a second time in favor of returning to work Wednesday. It was the Vancouver action in sending pickets to Victoria that closed the local service down.

But in a boisterous meeting the 300 carriers put a 14-day time limit on the deal, and said they will strike again if they don't like Judge Anderson's wage recommendations. Tuesday's vote, including all Vancouver personnel was 421-454 to return.

MAY STRIKE AGAIN

"If the Anderson report is not acceptable to us, we'll go out in full force for another strike," said Ray Andrus, Vancouver president of Federated Association of Letter Carriers.

While letter carriers in Vancouver haggled over whether or not to continue striking, letter carriers in Vancouver Island cities were out delivering a backlog of mail accumulated during the strike.

MOUNDS OF MAIL

Inside Island post offices, clerks sorted their way through mounds of mail.

Everything appears back to normal, but Island postal workers also are waiting for the Anderson report, and the judge's recommendations could put them on strike again.

Port Alberni postal workers sent a representative to Wednesday night's Vancouver meeting. He will report today.

WORKERS TORN

Port postal workers are torn between waiting for the Anderson report, or throwing in their lot with Montreal and going out on strike again.

Their representative's report will tip the scales today. Victoria strike leaders agreed that the next 14 days are the crucial ones for postal workers.

SUPPORT EXECUTIVE

"We stand behind our national executive," said Gerald Kenny, head of the local branch of the Canadian Association of Postal Employees.

LONDON (UPI)—Bachelor Edward Heath, now leader of the Conservative opposition, was asked by a woman journalist Wednesday who would be the official hostess of the government if he became prime minister.

Postal Pay Research

Diefenbaker Demands Liberals Air Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker demanded Wednesday that the federal government make public the report of the pay research bureau on postal salaries.

He told reporters that he made a formal request for the civil service bureau's report after Revenue Minister Benson called him a liar and was told it is confidential.

This reply, he said, "makes a subterfuge" of Mr. Benson's and Prime Minister Pearson's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker was wrong in saying the pay research bureau recommended striking postal workers get an increase of $800 a year.

The Progressive Conservative leader said his demand for publication of the report "will be repeated," apparently when Parliament reassembles.

The government can end this strike by showing a reasonable attitude to the reasonable requests of reasonable men. "Instead of that, Canada is suffering from an ineffective and stumbling government which should have faced up to the postal workers' situation weeks ago."

Mr. Diefenbaker called for a system of collective bargaining for civil servants, with matters unresolved at the bargaining table to be submitted to a three-man panel headed by a Supreme Court of Canada judge for binding arbitration.

Negro Sells Racial Peace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—The unusual story of a Negro offering racial peace to a number of Alabama communities for a price was uncovered Wednesday.

Jacob James Israel, Negro public relations man, said he already had received $1,500 for negotiating racial troubles in Demopolis, Ala., and that an equal payment was due in the fall.

"Of course it's not black-mall," Israel said. "I'm offering a service to these communities and I don't like violence."

Israel, a husky man in his 40s, said he was "working" in a number of other Alabama towns, which he declined to identify. He also said that, as a public relations and labor consultant, his office handles "various disputes in several states—Louisiana, Georgia, South and North Carolina."

He gave no specifics.

UPI learned that Israel's $1,500 fee was raised by 15 merchants in Demopolis who contributed $100 each after a direct proposition from Israel to the Demopolis city council was turned down.

One merchant described the offer:

"His first visit was about three months before our trouble started," he said. "Then, just after things got bad here, he made us the offer again."

He told us, "You thought you could do without me, didn't you? Well, you couldn't."

As suddenly as they started, the demonstrations stopped and there have been no more.

The merchant said that when the council rejected Israel's offer, Israel dropped his price from $5,000 to $3,000. Still the city council refused.

It was then, UPI learned, that Demopolis merchants joined to raise the first $1,500 payment to Israel.

That was no lady. It's Maier's two-year-old Afghan hound, Belden's Dhi-Mond.

East Demands Firm Offer

to $300 annual increases given them recently.

The promise did not budge striking postmen in the Montreal area where union leader William Houle declared: "No firm figure, no action."

In Toronto two further strike meetings were planned for later Wednesday and a delegation of top-level union officials was scheduled to fly in from Ottawa to talk to the city's joint strike committee.

Joseph Belland, president of the brotherhood, said his group now is devoting all its time and attention to the Toronto situation which it regards as crucial to the whole walkout.

EIGHT CENTRES

He said that if the Toronto strike could be dealt with effectively Montreal would become an isolated problem.

Throughout the rest of Ontario the situation remained fluid. Post office workers remained on strike in eight centres besides Toronto, including two, Chatham and Sarnia, where postmen joined the walkout for the first time.

The workers were back on the job in 22 other centres. In St. Catharines and St. Thomas employees voted to return to work for two weeks only, when they will examine Judge Anderson's report.

In Quebec all centres except Montreal and Quebec City were gradually returning to normal after a series of meetings.

In his statement in Ottawa Judge Anderson said that while he works out a detailed recommendation on pay boosts the government should agree as an interim measure to equalize its recent pay increases for postmen.

ALL GET BOOST

This would mean that all post office employees and not just senior clerks would receive $360 annual increases backdated to Oct. 1, 1964. Previously junior clerks and letter carriers received $300 annual increases.

The increases gave letter carriers a maximum of $4,680 a year and senior a maximum of $5,040 a year.

The series of strikes started last Thursday in Vancouver, Hamilton and Montreal after leaders of the postal unions called the increases inadequate in view of their demands for increases of $600 to $800.

Two Killed As Plane Falls, Burns

EDMONTON (CP) — Two persons were killed Wednesday when the light plane in which they were flying over rugged lake and mountain country crashed and burned near Red Earth, 70 miles north of Lesser Slave Lake.

RCMP at Peace River, who sent an investigating team into the area by plane said names of the victims would be withheld until relatives had been notified. Ownership of the plane was not established immediately.

Two constables left Peace River, planning to land at a forestry service airstrip near the crash scene to make their investigation. Two inches of rain fell in the area this week, making backroads impassable for motor traffic.

Action Pledged on Split Families

MOSCOW (CP) — A visiting Canadian parliamentary delegation won a promise from high Soviet officials Wednesday that they will see what can be done to help Russians wishing to join relatives now living in Canada.

The pledge was made at a 2½-hour meeting between the touring parliamentarians and a group of executives and legislators headed by Jan Payve, chairman of the council of nationalities of the Supreme Soviet.

HEADING HOME

In Bangkok, Thailand, Lachin Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma heading home from visits to New Delhi and London, said he had made the trip to discuss the Indochina situation.

He said Laos was ready to take part in an Indochina conference "on the basis of the 1954 Geneva agreements," which established the present status of North and South Viet Nam, Laos, and Cambodia.

WOULD BE WISER

In London, Lord Avon, the former Anthony Eden, told the house of Lords it would be wiser for Britain to try to negotiate a cease-fire in Viet Nam through a conference rather than trying for the cease-fire first.

"Sooner or later there will have to be a political settlement of this particular conflict," he said. "Probably this will mean a return to the Geneva agreement, or something very similar."

The meeting took place after the Canadian delegation had returned to Moscow from a six-day journey to Tiflis in Georgia, South on the Black Sea, Kiev and Leningrad.

The problem of divided families has long been a source of friction in relations between Canada and Russia. Hundreds of former Soviet citizens now living in Canada are seeking to have their kinfolk, still living in the Soviet Union, join them.

ONLY THIMBLE

However, Soviet officials have been allowing only a trickle of would-be emigrants to go although the process has speeded up slightly in recent months.

The subject was brought up at Wednesday's meeting by Liberal Senator David Croft of Ontario; Kenneth More, Conservative MP for Regina City, and Jack Rombough, Liberal MP for Norfolk.

Payve and six other Soviet officials promised to look into the matter and do what they could to expedite the reunification process, conference sources said.

WIDE RANGE

The meeting covered a wide range of subjects from trade to paintings.

Common Speaker Alan Macnaughton, co-chairman of the delegation, with Croft, put in a request for a Russian art exhibition to visit Ottawa in 1968.

Payve promised to recommend strongly to the Soviet culture ministry that it be allowed to go to Canada.

Creditable leader Raul Caucete called for enthusiastic Soviet participation in Expo '67, the Montreal world's fair.

Mailmen Call Two-Week Truce

"I'd presume that they'd call for a strike vote if the Anderson report is unsatisfactory."

He said postal workers were "pleased" to be back to work, and the decision to return was "a popular decision."

CONFIDENCE SHAKEN

"The postal workers' confidence in the government is a little shaken," said Jack Bell, Victoria letter carrier chief. He said he has confidence in the "competence of Judge Anderson."

Getting the workers back on the job "is good," he went on, because it puts workers across the country on the same basis.

ACTION THREAT

He said the union's national executive has indicated that if the Anderson report is not acceptable, "drastic action will be taken."

In Nanaimo, postal workers were on the job at 6 a.m. Wednesday, and postmaster Mike Gord said that by the weekend, things should be back to normal.

"Fourteen days is a good cooling off period," said Bill Campbell, secretary of the letter carriers' branch there.

Nanaimo postal workers will hold a meeting after the 14-day period to decide on a stand.

In Courtenay, postal workers were on the job Wednesday morning.

Many Vancouver Island old-age pensioners received their cheques Wednesday, and high school students will know within the next few days whether that last burst of study helps them in their final examinations.

Victoria postmaster Allan Davies found a parcel with his name Wednesday.

Originally bound for Saskatchewan, the parcel, which contained some meat or fish, was held up in the strike, turned upside down, and tossed out by nose-clutching postal employees.

WORKING OVERTIME

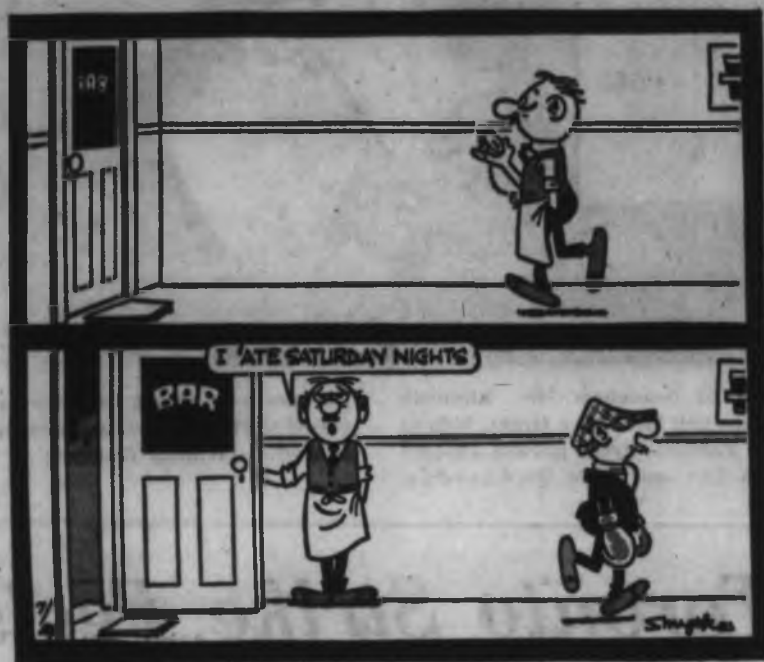

"We are making very favorable progress. We are pretty well on top of incoming mail. Everyone is working about two hours overtime," Mr. Davies said.

Victoria postal workers handled about 300,000 pieces of mail Wednesday.

"We still have an embargo on third-class mail and parcel post," he said.

Things are back to normal, at least for the next 14 days.

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Our young son is left-handed, but his father insists that he write right-handed. The boy's writing is very poor, and he is becoming moody and unruly, and calm only when his father is not around.

If you approve of changing from left to right hand, then I'll go along with it, but I can't stand any more arguments on the subject. They are at the exploding point. —MRS. L.L. NO SENSE Forcing such a child to write with his right hand makes as much sense as insisting that your husband write with his left hand.

The correct way is the natural way, and if a person is left-handed, he should remain so. Sometimes he can be forced to learn to write the other way — I've known of people who, because of permanent damage to one hand, learned to write after a fashion with the other. But such people could see a good reason for doing so. However, writing with the other hand remains a strain.

UPSETTING

Forcing a child, for no good reason, to write unnaturally is one rather sure way of upsetting him psychologically and perhaps leaving him with a sense of awkwardness and uncertainty all his life.

By all means let him go back to using the left hand. If your husband still has doubts, why not ask him to agree to leave the problem up to your own doctor, or to the psychologists in the school system, who have had a great deal of chance to see what happens when a child is forced to change writing habits.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 30-year-old father has lost practically all vision in one eye and has poor vision in the other from glaucoma. What foods or drinks are worse than others for this condition? Under what circumstances would an operation help?

—MRS. B. A. Diet does not specifically affect glaucoma (although in secondary ways proper diet, restriction of salt being an important item, can be helpful in early phases). Whether surgery can be of benefit will have to be decided by your own doctor, but I'll be frank: When it has gone so far that eyesight has been lost, it may be too late to do anything. That is why I keep advising tests to detect glaucoma before falling eyesight forces the issue.

Hydrofoil Ship Victoria Will Run at 37 Knots

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Victoria, a hydrofoil hybrid of a plane and a ship, will be launched in Chesapeake Bay today.

After a series of test runs in Chesapeake waters, the $1,500,000 Victoria will be shipped to the Puget Sound for a two-month passenger service from Seattle to Victoria.

The 75-passenger hydrofoil will then travel down the coast and over to Honolulu, to begin several months of inter-island service in Hawaii.

The craft will be returned to the Puget Sound next spring and future sister ships will operate in Hawaii on a year-round basis.

Builders have taken three years to construct the sleek, 65-foot craft which resembles a luxury yacht on stilts at the Maryland Shipping and Drydock Co.

William I. Niedermair, president of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines Inc., which owns the ship, claims it is "not like any other ship in the world."

Design of the Victoria differs from similar ships in that its hydrofoils are submerged, rather than skimming along the water's surface.

The boat sits in the water when idle, but is transformed during take-off as it lifts from the waves at 18 knots. In about two minutes, the boat is aloft, speeding seven feet above the water on three 15-foot submerged hydrofoils which work in the water much the same way as an aircraft's wings operate in the air.

NO SEASICKNESS
The Victoria will have a cruising speed of about 37 knots.

The builders say seasickness will be no problem for the Victoria's passengers since the still-like struts lift the hull out of the water and the submerged hydrofoils power the boat beneath the waves' surface.

The Victoria is designed to be competitive with airlines in providing short-haul service for passengers and light cargo.

Schedules will be set up and the passengers will be served refreshments by stewards.

Heath delivered a wide ranging attack on Wilson's policies and said he planned to personally confront the Prime Minister next Monday in the House of Commons with a motion to ensure the government's economic policies.

He said Labor was being forced to "overthrow all its past promises—it is also showing the muddle and incompetence we have had in the handling of our economic affairs in the past nine months."

He hopes to get it all back, and then some, by charging up to $1.50 for each adult who wants a close-up gander at the spouting mammal with the big black back, dorsal fin and white belly.

Critics No Help

Beatle Opus Panned

LONDON (AP)—The Beatles took a hard day's pounding from the critics Wednesday for their second movie, a slapstick opus in color called Help!

The general verdict from the writers was that it had its moments, but not enough of them.

Most found it a disappointment after the quartet's successful first film A Hard Day's Night.

However, the movie got an enthusiastic reception from most of the audience at a preview Tuesday. It will open today at a benefit premiere attended by Princess Margaret.

The movie is a fantasy based on a mysterious sect's chase after drummer Ringo Starr. One of his celebrated rings is supposed to have magic properties.

Downed Flyer Rescued

Pilots Hold Reds at Bay for Pal

SAIGON (AP)—A half-dozen U.S. Navy pilots shot up an enemy unit in North Viet Nam Wednesday to protect a fallen flying mate until he could be plucked to safety by helicopter.

The action, 65 miles north of the border dividing Viet Nam, was the first announced aerial strike at North Viet troops, though its military installations have been hit off and on for more than five months.

U.S. spokesmen told of the rescue operation.

At the same time U.S. and South Vietnamese marines pressed a joint offensive against the Viet Cong guerrillas in the Duc An area 80 miles south of Da Nang, South Viet Nam. They shot their way slowly eastward from an island helicopter landing zone toward Da Nang, on the seacoast 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

The Americans killed 12 Viet Cong troops digging in for the night near Duc An. The South Vietnamese marines counted five dead guerrillas. Casualties among the attackers were officially described as light.

South Vietnamese troops staged two drives south of Saigon, one 35 miles away and the other 75 miles from the capital. A U.S. spokesman said 20 Viet Cong were killed and 14 men were rounded up in one operation and the other uncovered weapons cache that included 20 Russian-made grenade launchers and 118 boxes of TNT. He said government casualties were light.

U.S. and South Vietnamese planes and U.S. armed helicopters staged further raids on suspected guerrilla holdings in South Viet Nam. Forward observers estimated the aircraft killed 300 Viet Cong in a narrow area. This was not confirmed, however, by body count.

Fateful Decision

NO ONE in the Western world can doubt the genuine desire of the American people and of their president that peace be re-established in South-east Asia.

Today no one can doubt, either, that the United States will bring increasingly massive power to defend her position in Viet Nam.

"We did not choose to be the guardians at the gate," President Lyndon Johnson told the American people yesterday in announcing the commitment of further military strength to South Viet Nam and an acceleration of the draft from 17,000 to 35,000 men a month. "But there was no one else."

Immediate reinforcement by 50,000 of the 75,000-man force ashore in South Viet Nam, supported by the carrier aircraft of the powerful 7th Fleet, is recognized as essential. With a mobile guerrilla army of 400,000 Viet Cong spread through the jungles about the American-held perimeter, the position of U.S. bases is always precarious.

The defensive position, however, is not the chief long-range concern of strategists. On the advice of the generals in the field and of the retired commanders of the Korean campaign, it is now admitted that only by advancing to engage the enemy in his chosen fighting ground, the jungle, can American forces, and their allies, hope to achieve a decision.

The French, in the long and bloody years which culminated in the surrender of Dien Bien Phu and their retirement from Indo-China, learned the hopelessness of static or defensive warfare. The Americans appear to have learned this lesson too... but not, it is hoped, too late.

While President Johnson is despatching another division of crack regulars to Viet Nam, he is at the same time appealing to the United Nations to use all its persuasive power and its influence to bring about a negotiated truce and an ultimate peace. While he plans substantial increases in the army's strength, already at nearly a million, he has not closed the door on hope that saner counsels will persuade the Viet Cong leaders and their Chinese allies to reconsider the explosive situation in the whole of Southeast Asia.

He cannot retreat, he says, and he cannot surrender.

"... Success," the president explains, "only feeds the appetite of aggression..."

The next move is obviously up to Hanoi and Peking. If these capitals maintain their belligerent and intransigent attitude there can be only one outcome: an accelerated war, with every likelihood of its spread to Cambodia and Laos, and almost certainly to North Viet Nam, and in some desperate crisis the possible use of atomic weapons. This the American generals not only admit but in some instances recommend.

Once again the world approaches the precipice.

Man with a Mission

IN CHOOSING Edward Heath as its new leader the British Conservative Party has selected a man possessed of youth, abundant ability, a keen understanding of practical politics and one of the Western world's foremost practitioners of the fading art of international statecraft.

In Canada he will be most particularly remembered as the man who nearly succeeded in taking Britain into the European Common Market single-handed despite the arguments of a large group of Commonwealth governments and the protests of many influential members of his own party.

It was largely because of his stand on this subject that he was rejected as a serious contender for the post of Tory leader on the retirement of Harold Macmillan in 1963. Only the compromise selection of Sir Alec Douglas-Home then maintained some form of cohesion between the party's rival factions.

Since then, things have changed a great deal for Britain. The Tories are no longer in power, and the Common Market is no longer seen as a threat to British independence and a danger to Commonwealth unity.

Perhaps Mr. Heath's one drawback as far as the rank and file members of his own party are concerned is that he may be thought of as once having been a rather pampered protégé of former Prime Minister Macmillan in whose years of office the Tory party lost so much ground.

But again, since then, things have changed. Britain's fortunes are at a low ebb, its government leadership—as Canada's—bumbling and tenuous, its purpose misty, and its future uncertain.

The time is ripe for Britain to set herself a new course to regain her economic stability, national pride and international stature. Mr. Heath—who could be prime minister in the very near future—may be just the man Britain needs at this time to accomplish such a mission.

Dubious Proposal

AT A GLANCE it would seem a reasonable suggestion from the school trustees in the Nanaimo district that provincial legislation be passed requiring portions of new subdivisions to be set aside for public use. Prompted by the high price asked for land for a school in a Departure Bay subdivision, the board has sent a brief to the appropriate government departments proposing that 10 per cent of the area of each subdivision should mandatorily be thus dedicated.

But questions arise both as to the practicality and the principle of the proposal.

On the practical side, there obviously would have to be a lower limitation on the size of subdivisions affected: if an acre were being cut into residential lots it would be pointless to set aside a tenth of it. But of more importance, would not the natural inclination of the subdivider in most instances be to dedicate for public use that portion of the land least attractive as a building site, and by the same token probably the most expensive to build on?

As for the principle, a thought underlying the suggestion will be that the subdivider in effect is responsible for the need for new classrooms in the locality but escapes the attendant costs. But on the other hand, it can be argued that where subdivisions create this need, they also create new taxation values to help pay the bill.

The school boards moreover have the power to expropriate land for school purposes, with the compensation set by arbitration if the price sought is deemed too high. In this way there is protection against exorbitant demands.

But the Nanaimo instance may be seen as another indication of the desirability of boards being allowed to act farther in advance of need in planning new schools and acquiring property for eventual use.

Ottawa Offbeat

Anti-Americanism in the NDP

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

AND so the New Democrats are going to make what they call their "big bid for power."

Give him as few as 30 seats in the next election, says NDP leader T. C. Douglas, and he'll be exercising the power-balance between Liberals and Conservatives that makes or breaks governments.

In such political calculations the NDP is counting heavily on leadership troubles continuing to cut Conservative strength, and recurring administrative difficulties to pare the power of the habitually accident-prone Liberals.

Give him 70 seats, chirps Douglas staccato, "and we'll turn Parliament upside down." Make it 100 seats, he dreams, "and we'll turn the economy right side up."

Well, even in wildest optimism, he knows 170 seats are impossible.

And 70 seats, he would admit in some cold reality, would be a miracle.

But 30? Well, maybe. A chance.

The old OCF did it 20 years ago, electing 31.

How do they figure it this time?

Three ways:

1. People have had enough of the Liberal brand of political morality.
2. They want no more of the current cross-purposes Conservatives.
3. Nobody's mad at the NDP.

Or that's the way the NDP sees itself and the two major parties.

No longer the self-appointed reformers sworn to world-saving through nationalization and tax-sharing the wealth, the NDP contends it's as politically comfortable now as an old shoe.

Civilized as Liberals-in-hurry and certainly as politically tame as the radical prairie Conservatives.

Maybe so.

But wait a second... what about this business of nobody, as they claim, being mad at the NDP?

What about NDP anti-Yankeeism?

All through the spring session of Parliament, the Yankee-baiters among them, particularly that political oddball Bert Harris of Kootenay West who likes to pose as a lovable old outmoded, were winking and wailing away at Washington.

To the point, on occasion, that Prime Minister Pearson, External Affairs Minister Martin and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker had to remind them that the Americans, like it in the NDP or not, happen to be our allies, friends and best customers.

But not just in Parliament has the NDP pursued its holy war in the abused name of peace against the Americans.

Just the other day at its annual convention in Toronto several dozen of its maddest took time out to picket the American consulate.

"Get out of Viet Nam," read their banners. "Yankee go home."

Not content with their silent protest, they shouted insult and abuse at the consulate's understandably closed door. And then there was that sickening applause at the news of Adlai Stevenson's death.

For all this disgusting display of crashing bad taste, the NDP, embarrassed, of course apologized. But took nothing back of its attack on the Americans.

So what's wrong with picketing the American consulate, or the embassy in Ottawa, as the NDP has often done?

Nothing, really, perhaps—except that the socialists use the same signs and slogans that the Indonesians carried when they sacked and burned American foreign aid libraries, and parrot the same anti-Yankeeism as any of the so-called "uncommitted" Afro-Asians.

And then there's this.

Have you ever seen or heard of the NDP picketing the Russian embassy and chanting "Rusky go home?"

Or the Czech or Polish embassies?

Even the Cuban embassy? Did the NDP lift a finger of protest, wave a banner, picket, peace-march, or demonstrate in any way when the Russians were installing those inter-continental nuclear ballistic missile bases in Cuba, with the warheads zeroed in for New York, Chicago, Detroit, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa?

It's a fact that neither T. C. Douglas nor his hard-headed deputy, Douglas Fisher, are anti-Yankee. Realists, recognizing the economic facts of life, they're probably more pro-Yankee than anything.

But their way-out element, the loopy far-left wing, with its studied anti-Yankeeism, and its tolerance or good-natured acceptance of the Russian, Red Chinese, North Viet Nam and Cuban version of the international story, is not making them any new, and may even be losing some old friends.

Nobody mad at the NDP? They're dreaming.

Communication Vital

Our Readers' Views

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on matters of general interest and must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Editors will be glad to return those that are brief.

Such an instance would be the event of nuclear warfare. Without the ties of postal and wireless communication, of trade, and of transportation, once a proud and mighty nation will become nothing more than giant conglomerations of towns, neighborhoods, and families, wholly ignorant of the affairs of other towns, neighborhoods, and families. We do not realize how terribly important are links to the outside world until some political or nuclear calamity severs these links.

Civil defence planners probably realize this fact. They insist, however, on fooling the public to believe that civilization could survive with no comprehensive communication.

Are we going to go forward with our knowledge or slip backwards, knowing in our hearts we are shamefully negligent? I urge fellow Victorians to stop passing the buck to so few and each take a hand in beautifying and saving our waters. We should all give our thanks to Mr. Faulks and Mr. Smith for showing us the way, with our whole-hearted support.

MRS. B. BASICH, 751 Newbury Street.

Predicament

If I were the PM I'd be inclined to ask, "Where do I stand, with my feet across the country and my head in Ottawa?" What an Alice in Wonderland arrangement!

The PM with "cannons to right of him and cannons to left of him" might be excused for flustering his ears.

Such a predicament reminds me of what my boss used to say, "One at a time, gentlemen, and you'll all get served!"

I submit that no PM can ride off in all directions at once. Regardless of horsemanship.

One could revise the story of the old lady who lived in a shoe to read, a PM who lived in politics to the point of exhaustion. Obviously he couldn't whip his peddlers or put them to sleep. All he can do is to pray for the intellectual strength and spirit to carry on in the traditions of high office.

Medicare, pensions, off-shore rights, tax agreements, redistribution of seats and countless other things. If anyone needs a tiger in his tank—it's the PM! Let's see if we can't have a fellow-feeling for the man who represents us at home and abroad in the stormy and uncertain seas of political conflict.

LAN GREIG, 1161 Port Street.

Man's Inhumanity

May I commend your editorial, "Captured Killer" in your issue of July 18.

It is a sad commentary on our "civilization" that man, having come so far along the scientific road, should now have to reassess the word "human" which by too many of our actions is degraded... in the thinking of, surely, the vast but unarticulated majority.

In the instance of Namu I trust that some action will somehow be taken to reverse the trend of man's inhumanity to man and so-called beast. Possibly such a move would lead on to the correction of thoughtlessness displayed in the handling and regard for all things "wild."

A. C. HAGUE, 2150 Haultain St.

Under Kadar, this Communist regime has displayed increasing "style." It began with Kadar's own switch from tough reconditioning after the uprising to an effort to create an atmosphere—and concrete opportunities—in which competent non-party people might be induced to cooperate in the social-economic rehabilitation of the country.

It met bitter opposition from party veterans afraid for their jobs and privileges. But on the whole it is succeeding. But not as much as Mr. Kadar claimed recently, when he said that virtually everyone in Hungary had found an "interest" in "joining hands" to build a Communist society.

In his first speech after relinquishing the premiership, Kadar criticized U.S. policy in Southeast Asia, but declared unequivocally that he was ready to be on good terms with the U.S. "We condemn the aggressive policy of the U.S.," he said, "but if the U.S. steps on to the road of improvement of relations, we greet it with joy."

Such sophisticated talking has a reassuring effect here. But, if an outsider can have a word with Kadar, there is one place in his country where sophistication is still overdue. This is on its western border. Nothing enlightened here. Soldiers, watch-towers, minefields and barbed wire, and unsmiling frontier guards who jerk the backseat of your car off its stand to look not for the smuggler's normal loot, but for human beings. This frontier is all that the traveller ever dreamed about the "iron curtain" and the tough men running life behind it.

When the switch was publicly announced, it was evident that it had been well prepared in advance. The decision made, it had been passed to lower levels of leadership and to the press. They were briefed on the reasons for it. As a result, when party leader Janos Kadar freed himself of the premiership it caused neither furor nor the wild gossip and nervous rumor customary on such Communist occasions. It was calmly accepted as a separation of two full-time posts which had been concurrently occupied by one man almost continuously since 1956.

There was a lesson here for the Russians on how to avoid the damaging impressions caused by Mr. Khrushchev's dismissal in a future reshuffle at the top. Of course, the circumstances were different. Mr. Khrushchev was being toppled from power. Mr. Kadar was not. But the latter had protested at the time, not over the dismissal, but over the shabby way in which the man who had run the affairs of his country—and the Eastern bloc—for 10 years, was hustled out without a word of thanks.

"We did things like that in the Stalinist-Roosevelt period," said a Hungarian. "But not any more."

On the contrary, when 53-year-old Janos Kadar himself proposed his resignation as premier, the Central Committee (and then the Presidential Council, which "constitutionalized" the change) proceeded to record a "recognition of his merits." A well-briefed press was able to assure Hungarians that persons were changed, not policies and that Hungary was still on "the good road."

Noe could it be otherwise, with Kadar still head of the party, and therefore of the country, and with one of his closest associates since 1956, Gyula Kallai, stepping into his shoes as premier.

Hungarian Communism

New Sophistication

By JOHN RUTHERFORD from Budapest

HUNGARY'S Communist Party is becoming the "sophisticated" party of the Soviet bloc. The Yugoslavs have displayed this characteristic in party affairs for some years.

Now it is beginning to show in some of the power centres of Eastern Europe, and especially here, where a change of prime minister has just been made with an air of constitutionalism remote from the usual automatic handling of Communist affairs.

When the switch was publicly announced, it was evident that it had been well prepared in advance. The decision made, it had been passed to lower levels of leadership and to the press. They were briefed on the reasons for it. As a result, when party leader Janos Kadar freed himself of the premiership it caused neither furor nor the wild gossip and nervous rumor customary on such Communist occasions. It was calmly accepted as a separation of two full-time posts which had been concurrently occupied by one man almost continuously since 1956.

As a result, when party leader Janos Kadar freed himself of the premiership it caused neither furor nor the wild gossip and nervous rumor customary on such Communist occasions. It was calmly accepted as a separation of two full-time posts which had been concurrently occupied by one man almost continuously since 1956.

There was a lesson here for the Russians on how to avoid the damaging impressions caused by Mr. Khrushchev's dismissal in a future reshuffle at the top. Of course, the circumstances were different. Mr. Khrushchev was being toppled from power. Mr. Kadar was not. But the latter had protested at the time, not over the dismissal, but over the shabby way in which the man who had run the affairs of his country—and the Eastern bloc—for 10 years, was hustled out without a word of thanks.

"We did things like that in the Stalinist-Roosevelt period," said a Hungarian. "But not any more."

On the contrary, when 53-year-old Janos Kadar himself proposed his resignation as premier, the Central Committee (and then the Presidential Council, which "constitutionalized" the change) proceeded to record a "recognition of his merits." A well-briefed press was able to assure Hungarians that persons were changed, not policies and that Hungary was still on "the good road."

Noe could it be otherwise, with Kadar still head of the party, and therefore of the country, and with one of his closest associates since 1956, Gyula Kallai, stepping into his shoes as premier.

Under Kadar, this Communist regime has displayed increasing "style." It began with Kadar's own switch from tough reconditioning after the uprising to an effort to create an atmosphere—and concrete opportunities—in which competent non-party people might be induced to cooperate in the social-economic rehabilitation of the country.

It met bitter opposition from party veterans afraid for their jobs and privileges. But on the whole it is succeeding. But not as much as Mr. Kadar claimed recently, when he said that virtually everyone in Hungary had found an "interest" in "joining hands" to build a Communist society.

In his first speech after relinquishing the premiership, Kadar criticized U.S. policy in Southeast Asia, but declared unequivocally that he was ready to be on good terms with the U.S. "We condemn the aggressive policy of the U.S.," he said, "but if the U.S. steps on to the road of improvement of relations, we greet it with joy."

Such sophisticated talking has a reassuring effect here. But, if an outsider can have a word with Kadar, there is one place in his country where sophistication is still overdue. This is on its western border. Nothing enlightened here. Soldiers, watch-towers, minefields and barbed wire, and unsmiling frontier guards who jerk the backseat of your car off its stand to look not for the smuggler's normal loot, but for human beings. This frontier is all that the traveller ever dreamed about the "iron curtain" and the tough men running life behind it.

When the switch was publicly announced, it was evident that it had been well prepared in advance. The decision made, it had been passed to lower levels of leadership and to the press. They were briefed on the reasons for it. As a result, when party leader Janos Kadar freed himself of the premiership it caused neither furor nor the wild gossip and nervous rumor customary on such Communist occasions. It was calmly accepted as a separation of two full-time posts which had been concurrently occupied by one man almost continuously since 1956.

There was a lesson here for the Russians on how to avoid the damaging impressions caused by Mr. Khrushchev's dismissal in a future reshuffle at the top. Of course, the circumstances were different. Mr. Khrushchev was being toppled from power. Mr. Kadar was not. But the latter had protested at the time, not over the dismissal, but over the shabby way in which the man who had run the affairs of his country—and the Eastern bloc—for 10 years, was hustled out without a word of thanks.

Johnson Picks Middle Way

President Johnson's plans for intensification of the American war effort in Viet Nam fell far short of what some had predicted. But it left open the possibility of an unlimited increase at a later date.

The president, as he so frequently has done when confronted with a dilemma, chose the middle way.

His announcement of an early increase in U.S. troop strength in Viet Nam by 50,000 men, and his decision to double the present draft call of 17,000 men per month, fell far short of the measure some experts had predicted he might take at once.

At the same time, however, his failure to indicate any eventual limit to the size or nature of U.S. participation undoubtedly will fall to quiet the fears of some that the United States might eventually be dragged into a vast and protracted Asian war.

The president's explanation of why the United States is in Viet Nam must not retreat impressed observers, but it failed to answer the nagging question voiced by some critics as to what the United States would do if the Saigon government, at whose request American forces are in the country, suddenly decided to talk peace with the Communists.

While holding down the immediate escalation of the American war effort to the "carefully measured" levels outlined, Johnson offered no assurance concerning the eventual limits, and no timetable, for the war.

The American people, he said, "should understand that there is no quick solution to the problems we face there."

Administration officials interpreting the president's remarks were careful to avoid speculating on how many Americans eventually might be forced to fight in Southeast Asia.

They made it clear that what the president has done is open the throttle on the American war machine one more notch in hopes that increased punishment will convince North Viet Nam, which the administration asserts is "guiding" the war in the south, to talk peace.

Johnson's assertion that "we do not seek the destruction of any government" appeared designed to convince Hanoi that if it came to the peace table, it need not fear any U.S. demands which would infringe on its sovereignty.

However, the fact that the president left wide open the eventual commitment of the United States seemed clear evidence that he is convinced there will be far greater fighting before it is possible to talk peace.

And his emotional explanation of his distress at uprooting young Americans to fight and die abroad seemed designed to prepare the nation for rising casualty figures in a long, hard struggle.

Lottery Threat To Union Power

Associated Press from London

The balance of power in Britain's Labor party may be quietly swinging away from the big unions as the result of a lottery organized by a socialist millionaire.

On the principle that money talks, the unions have always had the vote and the power to influence policy in the party, although a Labor government is not bound to follow them down the line.

The party's annual report shows that the unions contributed $772,455 to the party treasury in 1963. Most of it comes from weekly subscriptions of a few pence exacted from union members. At the same time, contributions from the more broadly based local party clubs came to only $109,884.

Robert Maxwell, a self-made publishing millionaire, set out to change this several years ago. In his Buckinghamshire district northwest of London, he organized a simple lottery.

Each better puts in a shilling (15 cents) a week. Half goes for prizes, the other half to the local Labor party. Shop stewards in factories provide a ready-made network of collectors.

Within two years, Maxwell's local Labor organization moved into a new clubhouse costing $42,000. It took on a full-time agent.

Maxwell, elected to parliament last October, announced himself as a candidate for the party's executive committee on a platform of modernizing the party organization.

Meanwhile, 70 other local clubhouses started lotteries. The lottery organization set up under the dignified name of the Labor National Fund Raising Foundation, reported profits of $700,000 last year, or about the same as contributions by unions. Next year, it estimates, lottery profits will be about $1,400,000.

The Times political correspondent commented:

"The numbers game means that a cadre of Labor workers, in factories, pubs, clubs and street by street, are in weekly contact with punters (bettors) who begin to associate Labor with one of their pleasures and thrills."

"It has been found easy to spread not only a little sunshine in drab lives but also a little propaganda; and a register of names is kept up to date for a time when a friend in need is a cross on the ballot paper."

Maxwell made it clear that the Labor high command eventually hopes to get a share of the lottery profits. He said: "We hope the local parties will begin to contribute from 10 to 50 per cent of their profits to Transport House (Labor party headquarters) to begin to match the contributions of the trade unions."

When that starts to happen, the local parties will no doubt begin to demand a vote at the conference besting their financial support. They take in farmers, white collar workers, professionals and others who for years have resented trade union policy domination.

Spain Enters Space Race

MADRID (Reuters) — Spain will launch its first space rockets sometime next year, firing them about 25 miles high at first, it was announced. The National Aerospace Institute will undertake the program, helped by America's National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

U.S. Raids Put Russia On Spot

By WILLIAM L. RYAN, from Moscow

The time may be near when the chips will be down for the Russians in the Viet Nam crisis. The U.S. defense department announcement that U.S. bombers knocked out an anti-aircraft missile site and damaged another in North Viet Nam could mean a big step has been taken in escalation of the war. The Soviets installed the sites and probably are manning them.

From all appearances, this is the sort of development the Russians feared since they had felt obliged to install anti-aircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam to demonstrate their willingness to aid a brother Communist regime.

Will it mean another confrontation similar to the 1962 Cuban missile crisis when Nikita Khrushchev backed away from a brink-of-war situation?

The development could cause trouble in the Kremlin, already involved in jockeying as the result of internal and external pressures.

Perhaps a large section of the Communist world banked on years of U.S. involvement in a costly Vietnamese war. Peking, at least, seemed to be gambling on it.

Up to now, at relatively small expense, Red China seemed the principal beneficiary of a prolonged war, standing to gain through the losses of others.

The United States so far has paid a price in men, material, prestige and propaganda setbacks, in prospective domestic dislocations from increasingly heavy commitments, in quarreling at home over policy, in the diffusion of U.S. forces and in the impact of U.S. alliances.

Moscow's edgy collective leadership also stood to lose. Reliable sources say that apart from the spectre of a new missile confrontation, the Kremlin feared that Soviet-U.S. strains would force a big military budget increase, setbacks to the Russian consumer economy program, the use of Viet Nam indefinitely by the Chinese as a stick to beat Moscow for lack of total support to a revolutionary cause, and enhancement of Chinese chances to spread influence at Moscow's expense.

Something new was added when the missile bases were bombed. Red China already is crying that "a showdown between the people's army (meaning the Communists) of the world and U.S. imperialism is inevitable."

In effect, Peking tells Moscow: "Put up or shut up." Ordinarily the prospect of America expanding its resources in Southeast Asia might please the Kremlin, too, but benefits would be negative. Unless Moscow faced up to the risks, it would stand condemned by the Chinese in the eyes of world revolutionaries as being non-revolutionary.

Red China probably would want to avoid overt participation in the Viet Nam war so long as it seemed the Americans were unable to win either in the field or at a conference table. Should the picture change, it is possible there would be another Korean-type "Chinese volunteer" exercise.

Vehicle Sales Show Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — A 10.9-per cent increase in new passenger car and commercial vehicle sales in May brought the number of units sold in the first five months of 1965 to 360,744, up 5.9 per cent from sales in the same period of 1964, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

Handwriting Expert Testifies in Court

An RCMP handwriting expert gave testimony Wednesday in Esquimalt magistrate's court when the preliminary hearing of charges against two HMCS Naden men went into its seventh day.

He was Staff-Sergeant Donald Brown of Vancouver, who examined signatures and figures on a number of invoices and receipts.

He said that on one of the receipts, bearing the signature of one of the defendants, the signature appeared to be a copy of the defendant's writing.

FRAUD CHARGES
Defendant was Charles Whyte, 8034 East Saanich. He and co-defendant Lieut. Eric Haywood, 2150 Allenby, face four charges of fraud and one of theft over $50.

The offences are alleged to have occurred between March 7, 1963, and Oct. 13, 1964.

The hearing occupied most of Wednesday afternoon and was adjourned to today.

Special White House Showing for Johnson

Mars Shots Bucked Scientific Odds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The close-up pictures of the planet Mars that President Johnson will see Thursday game back to earth against heavy scientific odds, a project official disclosed Wednesday.

John R. Casani, Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) Spacecraft Systems manager for the Mariner IV space camera, said experts at one point estimated "there was less than a 28 per cent probability" the 575-pound probe would successfully send back photographs.

Mariner IV defied the pessimists and flashed 22 pictures, all taken within 10,500 miles of Mars, to earth stations. Three have already been released, and President Johnson will take a look at others during a special White House showing tomorrow at 7:30 a.m. PDT. Casani, appearing at the annual meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics here, was a surprise, last-minute replacement for JPL director William H. Pickering, who went to Washington to explain the snapshots to the president—and to receive a special medal.

Casani described the fantastic voyage of Mariner IV as "equivalent to turning on your television set and leaving it operating day and night for 115 years—without adjusting the horizontal hold or focus."

He also disclosed that scientists were considering the possibility of turning on Mariner IV's on-board rocket motor when, in September, 1967, it returns to within 30 million miles of earth. But, he added, "We've decided not to fire the motor again . . . in 1965."

Casani said Mariner IV is successfully re-running its magnetic tape, on which the pictures are electronically engraved, from a distance of 150 million miles from earth. But, he added,

Assize Dates

Opening date for Supreme Court Fall Assizes in Victoria Law Courts is announced as Monday, Nov. 8.

"We now think we could have safely terminated the tape after the first run."

A re-run was decided upon to make sure each tiny piece of each picture had been received on Earth.

Also today, a U.S. Space Agency official said U.S. astronauts face the prospect of quarantine when they return from the moon, to insure Earth against the possibility of cosmic contamination.

Harold P. Klein, assistant director of life sciences for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Centre, revealed that keeping the lunar astronauts away from immediate contact with the rest of the human race "is a very serious topic" in the space agency and in scientific circles.

Klein, appearing at the annual meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, told newsmen "there is a very low probability" spacemen would contract germs on the moon because, in prevailing scientific opinion, no life exists there.

Death Haunts Crossroads

BLUFFTON, Ind. — William Caley must have felt the stab of a painful memory every time he passed the lonely crossroads. His father was killed there five years ago. Caley loaded his wife and four children into the family car for an evening at the county 4-H show. Minutes later, as the car passed the fatal intersection, it was struck by another. Caley, 41, and his children, Kirby, 14, Kent, 13, Kris, 11, and Kevin, 8, were killed. His wife, Marjorie, 40, was critically injured. State trooper Richard Meyers said the car which struck Caley's apparently ran a stop sign. It was also Meyers who investigated the crash five years ago which killed Caley's father.

Haligonians Celebrate

HALIFAX, N.S. (UPI) — Parades and pageantry highlighted the events as Halifax celebrated its 216th birthday Wednesday.

Tens of thousands of Haligonians and visitors jammed the city streets to watch what has been described as the largest and most colorful parade in the city's history. Eighty floats, 13 military bands, hundreds of majorettes as well as members of the armed forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police joined the parade that took more than an hour to pass the reviewing stand.

Socreds Hit Snag Upon Snag With Birthday Party Plans

The Socreds' 13th birthday Aug. 14 will be a tame affair compared to some in the past. The party begins its 14th year in power this weekend and the event was to have been celebrated with barbecue for 500 supporters travelling by special train to Alta Lake.

informing members of the change in plans. So the affair has been delayed until Aug. 14.

Last year on the Aug. 2 party birthday, Premier Bennett tossed 12 lighted flares onto a barge piled high with $30,000,000 in paid-up bonds. On the shores of English Bay thousands watched the spectacle and 10,000 more attended festivities at Kitchikan showboat.

But when the PGE, CPR and CNR could not supply the needed extra cars, officials decided to hold a picnic in Stanley Park, Vancouver.

U.S. Bid Made For Sick Firm

NEW YORK (AP)—The General Acceptance Corp., of Allentown, Pa., has offered to buy the Atlantic Acceptance Corp., a Toronto finance company.

S. Hayward Wills, president of General Acceptance, declined Monday to place a dollar value on the offer for the firm that has been in receivership since June 17.

Wills said, however, that General Acceptance has made a definite proposal to Montreal Trust Co., the court-appointed trustee of Atlantic.

Trust is talking with other firms interested in acquiring Atlantic's assets, which include about 100 offices in Canada.

The company was placed in receivership after it failed to meet a $5,000,000 short term note due in early June.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M.D. Harrison to belding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness—and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria this Friday, July 30.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison said that he, himself, will conduct the Victoria clinic. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday at the Empress Hotel.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing me," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home Treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks, to get best results. "For this reason, you must regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver."

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'tuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth of the organization behind it. Harrison and his affiliates maintain treatment clinics in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico. And their staff trichologists regularly do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Unretouched photographs made four months apart.

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatment. Unretouched photographs made four months apart.

Satisfy 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it."

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish—by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's tried everything. So he starts consulting himself with one of the old superstitions about hair: That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Treatment

See Mr. Harrison in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Empress Hotel between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Harrison's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

In Women's Tournament

Field of 166 Ready to Play

KITCHENER (CP) — The Canadian Women's Open and Open golf championships begin at the Westmount Golf and Country Club here today with 166 amateurs from across Canada and from the United States entered.

The Close event, open only to Canadians, is scheduled Thursday, Friday and Saturday with 54 holes of medal play deciding the winner.

At the same time the Canadian Junior Women's championship will be played with Canadian entries 18 years and under competing over 54 holes of medal play.

Thursday's 18 holes, along with 18 on Friday, will decide the interprovincial team championship for senior competitors while the juniors will determine their team champion over the same 36 holes Thursday and Friday.

Play swings to the Open segment next week with 18-hole qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday narrowing the field to 32 for the first round of match play next Wednesday. Two more rounds Thursday will reduce the field to four for Friday's semi-finals and final.

The 36-hole final will be held Saturday, Aug. 7, with 18 holes in the morning and another 18 in the afternoon.

CLOSE GETS 145

A field of 145, including defending champion Gail Harvey of Toronto, has entered the Close competition. Miss Harvey won the title in Calgary last year with a 54-hole score of 215.

Also entered in the Close are Joanne Goulet of Regina, Saskatchewan champion who with Miss Harvey was a member of the Canadian amateur women's team competing last year in France.

A third member of the team, Betty Stanhope Cole of Woodbridge, Ont., and formerly of Edmonton, has also entered.

CHAMP DEFEATED

The junior division has also attracted a top field with Sandra Post of Milton, Ont., defending her championship.

Ontario is the defending champion in the four-member team event and is favored to repeat its victory. On the team are Miss Harvey, Miss Post, Mrs. Cole and Sue Hilton of London, Ont. Miss Harvey will captain the team.

British Columbia, second to Ontario last year, will be led by captain Barbara Renwick of Vancouver, last year's B.C. Women's champion. Others on the team are Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., Mrs. Len Collett and Janet McWha, both

Stengel Report Is Good

NEW YORK (AP) — Casey Stengel, the celebrated vaudevillian, was reported doing fine Wednesday at hospital where he underwent successful surgery on a fractured left hip the day before.

If the New York Mets' baseball manager continues his improvement, he may be walking with the help of a cane in another three or four days, said Dr. Peter LaMotte, the Mets' physician who headed a team of orthopedic surgeons which performed the operation.

Casey, who will be 75 Friday, has been permitted no visitors other than his wife Edna.

Telegrams and letters from well-wishers all over the world were pouring into the hospital. Stengel will remain in hospital for about three weeks, said Dr. LaMotte. Then there will be a recuperation period, the length to be determined by how Stengel feels.

Five Rich Weeks Due

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Gary Player, the black-clad little South African who is playing the best golf of his professional career, heads a horde of the game's elite who have gathered for the Thunderbird classic, a tournament that ushers in the richest five weeks in Professional Golf Association history.

At least $825,000—and very likely more—in prizes will be up for grabs in that period, starting with the first round of the Thunderbird today. Player, the United States Open champion, who scored a 11-stroke victory in the National Challenge match at Washington last weekend, ranks as the man to beat.

Player, a 150-pounder became only the third player ever to complete a career slam of golf's major championships when he won the U.S. Open at St. Louis earlier this year.

He named Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, defending champion Tony Lema and Billy Casper as likely candidates for the top prize of $20,000.

This $100,000 tournament will be followed by the $125,000 Philadelphia classic, the PGA championship over Palmer's home course at Ligonier, Pa., the $200,000 Carling Open at Sutton, Mass., and the $100,000 American Golf Classic at Akron, Ohio.

The PGA has a value of at least $100,000, perhaps more.

Upsets Feature Vancouver Races

VANCOUVER—Form players found the going rough at Exhibition Park on Wednesday as overlooked thoroughbreds put double figure win prices on the tote board five times.

Old City Sprinkler Bought by Museum

Last of Victoria's original street sprinklers—if there was more than one of them—is to go on public display. But not in the city.

The venerable horse-drawn vehicle was auctioned off the other night after it had stood in anonymous retirement for some 30 years.

MUSEUM

True worth or not, it was knocked down at $180. And the water wagon was destined for the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum, one mile north of Duncan on Somers Lake.

It was bought for the museum by Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Wellburn of Dunsen, Duncan, who have been collecting relics of the logging industry for the past 15 years.

The museum was built around this collection, opening in May of this year.

HISTORY OF FOREST

Explaining the latest addition, 65-year-old Mr. Wellburn, who retired a year ago from a managerial post with MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company, said:

"The history of the forest is tied up with water wagons. They were used to fight fires, haul water for men and animals and Mr. the old steam donkey engines that yarded in the timber."

AGE UNKNOWN

But this one does not appear to have had quite so "glamorous" a career.

Its age is unknown, but according to P. T. Dowell of 4116 Torquay, Saanich, its last owner, it would be the same water wagon reported to have been sprinkling the dry and dusty streets of Victoria more than a century ago.

This wagon undoubtedly did perform such duties in Victoria and was later sent to Oak Bay. Drawn by two Clydesdales, it became a familiar sight spraying the old Willows racetrack between races.

UNDER OAKS

Thirty years ago, the wagon was bought by Arthur Lembrick, proprietor of the Gordon Head dairy, who thought it would be useful to water down his fields.

But for most of the time it languished under the oak trees at the dairy and it was there that Mr. Dowell found it last February.

"I went there to look for wagon wheels to decorate the front of my house," said Mr. Dowell. "Mr. Lembrick said he had some but it was only afterwards I discovered they were attached to a water wagon."

"Our men have carried out tests in overseas waters and the thing works. Of course if the shark smells blood and goes into a frenzy there's nothing yet invented that will stop it attacking. Frenzied sharks even eat each other."

"He said I would have to take the whole thing and I decided it was too good to carve up."

The wagon had since stood at the side of the Dowell home and attracted many admirers. Mr. Dowell hoped to spruce it up to become a monument but decided to part with it to someone who might have more time to refurbish it.

She "Saw" Kennedy's Death

11 years before it happened, Jeane Dixon "saw" death descending on the White House, and, 3 months before he was shot, tried to get word to President Kennedy "not to make that trip." In August Reader's Digest read "The Crystal Ball", with carefully researched facts—plus 8 appalling prophecies through 1999 A.D. Get your copy of Reader's Digest today.

Handy Shark Spray

LONDON (AP) — British scientists have come up with a handy shark repellent which navy divers can squirt at inquisitive sharks.

"It's just like the household uses in the kitchen or bathroom and works the same way," said Edward Lee, an Admiralty expert on sharks. "If the shark comes along you give it a squirt rather like you would a fly or moth. The aerosol shoots out a chemical irritant for several feet which affects the shark's eyes or gills."

"Our men have carried out tests in overseas waters and the thing works. Of course if the shark smells blood and goes into a frenzy there's nothing yet invented that will stop it attacking. Frenzied sharks even eat each other."

Variety for Soviet Girls

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russian women no longer will find their friends wearing the same new dresses when a new consumer research institute gets to work, a Soviet newspaper claims.

Komsomolskaya Pravda, the Communist youth daily, said that the new institute would study the consumer market at the national level and in each region, using computers and modern statistical methods.

The creation of the new organization, which comes under the state committee for trade, follows the recent pattern of trying to tailor output to the consumer's wants instead of to the planners' dictates.

Law Catches Up To Young Thief

SEATTLE (AP) — A 16-year-old boy here has lost all faith in human honesty.

He told police Wednesday somebody had stolen his sports car—and he had only stolen it himself a short time ago in Spokane.

He did not go to the police. The police came to him after a chase when he left a service station without paying for gasoline. He was driving a station wagon—also stolen, the officers said.

The boy was identified only as a fugitive from the state's Spruce Canyon forest camp north of Spokane.

Patrolman John Richardson said the boy also admitted stealing a pickup truck and a foreign car in Spokane before taking the sports car.

Play Opens (Finally)

Thomas More's Tragedy Coward with an Opinion

By PATRICK O'NEILL

This is a criticism of the play A Man for All Seasons by Robert Bolt, produced last night for the Renaissance Festival at the University of Victoria.

The criticism begins at 8 p.m. on a hot evening, when the doors to the auditorium were scheduled to open. They didn't open, though the audience obediently gathered in time for the advertised 8:15 curtain time.

The doors were still not open at 8:15; the audience milled about in the cattle barn heat of the foyer, vigorously fanning themselves with programs.

ALLOWED IN
Nor had the doors opened at 8:30. The first members of the audience were allowed into the theatre at 8:35.

By 8:50, 35 minutes after the scheduled start, the prod of O Canada boosted the public from their seats and the show began. No excuse was made to the audience for this shocking, disgraceful mismanagement.

RICHARD RIOT
If the audience had been hockey fans, kept waiting in the Montreal Forum lobby, Renaissance officials would have had to contend with the biggest fireworks since the Richard riots. But drama buffs are more lenient.

Pity.
When the play began, the actors acquitted themselves with enough skill and vitality to ease the hostility caused by the long wait.

BOWS FLOURISH
Director Carl Hare presented the play with a flourish.

He showed considerable insight into the workings of politics as they existed at the time of Henry VIII, and as Bolt suggests they have operated through history.

The play had moments of great strength, primarily provided by portrayals such as that of Henry VIII, as the common man; Margaret Hall as Alice More; Susan McFarlane as her daughter, and Frederic DeSantis as Thomas Cromwell.

THEIR STAGE
Weaker moments came from the Caligula-like presentation of the king, by Paul Bettis, and the director's failure to remember that a thrust stage is not a round stage, and only so much should be seen of an actor's back.

Anthony Jenkins' mannerisms, his constant little laugh, his ever-ready smile, which we saw last year in Richard III, marred an acceptable performance of Thomas More.

Both actor and director interpreted the part with too much evenness, not enough of the constant terror of an intellectual enmeshed.

For More is not, according to Bolt, a brave man of principle. He is a coward, but a coward with a conscience.

He is not the staunch upholder of the faith, the spokesman for what is right.

Rather, More is a lawyer, trying mightily to lie in the same bed with evil, without compromising himself.

He does not try to change the course of events as he believes they should be changed. He tries only to keep silent.

And that, he cannot do. He only speaks out, firmly and bravely, when his head is going, without hope of pardon, to the block.

CONTRAST THEME
The theme of the play, with its contrast between More, his king, and the common man, is this:

Principle is a game for princes and politicians; it is not the stuff of the history of man.

The common man goes on his course in spite of Caesar's death, in spite of Wellington's victory, in spite of Goldwater's defeat.

If this is so, then conscience, for which a martyr dies, dies with the martyr.

NOT A MARTYR
The tragedy of More is that he is not as he himself agrees, a martyr.

His death is not the result of burning fanatic zeal, like that of early Christians before the lions, or burning Buddhists in Saigon.

He freely admits that what he calls a matter of conscience, is a matter of opinion.

The world may be flat, or it may be round. God may sanction Rome, or King Henry, More does not know.

He makes his sacrifice (a misleading word in itself) without the belief in God's reward for his pains, or the hope of any good result in history.

More dies, because white may indeed be white, but it looks black to him. And that is that. A matter of opinion.

Iraqi Bomb Kills Turk

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI)—An Iraqi air force plane, apparently on an attack mission against Kurdish rebels, strayed over the Turkish border Wednesday and bombed a Turkish village. One Turk was killed and four seriously injured.

The Turkish Ministry of the Interior said the plane dropped four bombs on the village of Cukureca in the Southeast Turkish province of Hakkari on the Iraqi border.

Military sources in Ankara said the Iraqi plane was pursuing Kurdish rebels in the northern mountains and bombed the Turkish village accidentally.

Police Seek Suspect Pair

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two city detectives left here Tuesday for Scotland to return two men accused in the theft of $1,200,000 in mutilated money.

Staff Sgt. Bill Porteous and Det. Bob Houghton are expected to spend about a week in Scotland before escorting back former Vancouver policeman Joseph Percival, 37, and real estate salesman James McDougall.

Percival and McDougall will be tried in Vancouver for the build-up of a railway service depot in February and unlawful possession of stolen money.

Ciccimarra, Mayhew discuss her carvings

Unusual Exhibit Shows Works Of City Artists

Any color imaginable or unimaginable can be found in the latest exhibition at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. On display is the work of 12 Victoria artists including works by Maxwell Bates, Richard Ciccimarra, Robert de Castro, Nita Forrest, Donald Harvey, Flaming Jorgensen, Virginia Lewis, Eliza Mayhew, Michael Morris, Molly Privett, Herbert Siebner and William West.

A special exhibition of graphics by Pat Martin Bates is also featured. Nudes, abstract landscapes, pastels, carvings, oils and colored canvases are featured. On exhibit is an urn by Herbert Siebner valued at $75 and made of two sea-wr pipes joined together. Another, consisting of swirls of blue, red, green and mixtures, by Donald Harvey, is valued at $800.

Prints, by Pat Martin Bates, were dubbed with unusual titles. JUST A THING Titles include Genesis, Demos of Bharata, Happiness is Just a Thing Called Delay, Fresh Mommy and Daddy, and To See Yet Not Be Seen—Like Kayoshik The Gull in Mist.

Mrs. Bates is a graduate of the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Belgium and has studied at the Academie de la Grande Chaumiere in Paris and at the Institute Nationale Supérieure in Belgium. TOP AWARD Last year five of her graphics were in the Canadian section which won the top international award at Print Biennial in Chile.

This year she is represented at the Commonwealth Festival of Arts in Wales. Paintings by Donald Harvey, Richard Ciccimarra and Michael Morris were displayed this year in the 6th biennial of Canadian Art.

Toll Higher In Canada
TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian mileage death-rate on the highway is higher than the United States death rate, the Ontario Safety League announced Wednesday. A press release said the Canadian death rate was 9.3 last year, compared with 8.7 in the U.S. The death rate is the number of persons killed in 100,000 vehicle miles.

Dockyard Plans Annual Picnic

Close to 6,000 sailors, civilian naval workers and their families are expected to attend the seventh annual picnic of HMC Dockyard at Royal Roads Aug. 4.

Organizers of the picnic claim—and have never been refuted—that it is the largest in western Canada.

It's open to all navy families in Pacific Command, and their friends as well.

During the day Miss Dockyard, 1965, will be chosen from COUVENTINAY—City council has entered into a new agreement with the night guard at the police station, for an annual salary of $3,600.

nine beauties. There will be a beautiful baby contest, athletics, boat races, a midway and even movies.

The picnic will be officially opened at 2 p.m. by Commodore R. M. Battles, chief of HMC Dockyard.

Co-ordinator of the picnic is Stuart Timbres, aided by John Milne, Don Warder, Jack Wolfenden and Douglas Nelson. Master of ceremonies is Ray Wormald.

Striker with sympathizers Jimmy Lee and Grant Boland

Hairbrush Arbitration Subdues Boy Striker

A one-boy strike in Victoria was settled Wednesday night without arbitration—a threat of a hairbrush broke the picket-line.

Publicity given the postal strike gave 10-year-old Craig Alguire, 2261 Estevan, the idea to go on strike, not for a larger allowance, but for his own bedroom.

He suddenly decided his present bedroom, which he shares with Brian, his 13-year-old brother, was far too small—although it had seemed large enough until recently.

Craig presented his demand for a private room to his parents Tuesday night.

They explained the reasons why they had to turn down his request—he quickly took a strike vote—and began picketing at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

"My mother thought he would quickly get tired of just walking up and down with that silly sign," said his brother Brian. "But he kept it up all day."

Passing motorists stopped their cars and laughingly asked the young striker how he was making out with his demands.

"A couple of girls stopped and said he was the cutest picket line they had ever seen," said Brian.

"I'm sure glad my friends don't know about this lousy deal," he added.

The strike came to an abrupt halt at 6 p.m.

Craig's patient mother claimed enough was enough, and lowered the boom.

She pointed out a mother has certain inalienable rights, such as applying a hairbrush to certain parts of a boy's anatomy, picket line or no picket line.

Candidate Promises:

War on Pornography

Advocating a clean-up of newsstand "pollution," Mrs. Evelyn MacKenzie, 121 Menzies Street, filed papers at city hall Wednesday as a candidate in the Aug. 12 aldermanic by-election.

Mrs. MacKenzie's candidacy brings to five the number who will seek election to fill the place on city council left vacant by the death of senior alderman Austin Curtis.

Candidates have until the afternoon of Aug. 2 to qualify.

In addition to eliminating from newsstands the type of magazine "which can contaminate the minds of our young people as badly as a polluted Gorge could contaminate their bodies," Mrs. MacKenzie would develop the Gorge as a centennial project.

The fifth candidate, who has run for alderman before, would also have Jerry Gooley at the McPherson Playhouse and institute a closer link between school boards and councils.

Other candidates: Frederick James Bevin, 601 Richmond Avenue, retired electrician. John Wesley Dickie, 1024 Pakington Street, company president.

Charles Emil Kingsfield, 80 Dallas Road, merchant. Victor R. Williams, 1625 Davis, company director.

Eight Left Homeless Following $9,000 Fire

Damage was estimated at about $9,000 in a fire which gutted a home at 1760 Kings Road Wednesday.

Eight persons were left homeless by the blaze, which destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rodger.

Also living with the elderly couple were Mr. and Mrs. John Rodger, Jr., and their four children, Terry, 8; Debbie, 6; Jackie, 5, and Richard, 3.

SMOKING SUSPECTED
Virtually all the possessions in the home were destroyed in the fire, which was believed to have started in a ground-floor utility room.

Firemen said the cause was thought to be smoking near an inflammable fluid.

At least some of the property was insured, but it was not known how much the coverage included.

FOUR-HOUR FIGHT

The blaze attracted large numbers of spectators as firemen fought it for about an hour.

The homeless persons are being cared for at the residence of another member of the family.

Mrs. Rodger gratefully declined offers of help received through the Colonist and the fire department.

Fireman Gerry Harris, broken dolls, debris

Firemen Kept Hopping

Local fire departments have been kept hopping during the past few days with a series of grass and brush fires.

Four extra men were required for duty in Saanich Tuesday, and during the afternoon two fires required a total of 5,500 feet of hose, the full complement of two trucks.

City firemen were called out Wednesday to the 3100 block Mars Street, while Saanich firemen attended at Cadboro Bay and Lochside, Pipeline and Coyette, Cedar Hill Golf Course, and Burnside and Trans-Canada.

Langford firemen were called out Tuesday to Leigh and Langford Lakes, and at Trans-Canada and Spence; while Saanich firemen were busy at Royal Oak and Cordova Bay, Cordova Bay and Lochside, and Colquits and Goward.

Girl Recovering From Accident

Six-year-old Shelly Gordon of 3440 Whittier is recovering from cuts and bruises after being struck by a car driven by Herbert Neula of Cobble Hill. She is under observation at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Esquimalt Providing $50,000 for Bridge

Esquimalt has indicated that it will provide $50,000 toward the cost of building a new bridge over the Gorge at Tilikum Road.

The provincial government will pay $100,000, while Saanich also will share the cost of construction.

Tussaud Writ

Museum Rivals Wax Furious—Again

The continuing war of the wax museums has broken out again in London, and the Royal London Wax Museum in Victoria will follow the battle in the courts with considerable interest.

Madame Tussaud's Ltd., the original London wax museum, issued a writ July 21 against unauthorized persons using the name Tussaud "in connection with a waxwork museum in any manner calculated to lead to the belief that such waxwork museum is operated or organized by, or is in any way associated with Madame Tussaud's."

JOSEPHINE

Royal London Wax Museum advertising includes the fact its wax figures are Josephine Tussaud models.

It gets its models from Josephine Tussaud and Company, an entirely separate firm.

Three defendants were served with the writ. One was Josephine Tussaud and Company.

NAME CHANGE

If the British civil courts find for Madame Tussaud's, Josephine Tussaud and Company will have to change the firm's name, and will have to tell all customers, including Victoria's museum, that the name Tussaud can no longer be used in advertising.

Local authorities had no comment.

Inventor Awaits Decision

Victoria machine-gun inventor C. N. Douglas is awaiting word from Washington on whether or not he's hit the jackpot with his recoilless weapon.

His agent, Hugh Lyle, said Wednesday that "we're waiting for some official word right now."

DEMONSTRATION

Mr. Douglas returned to Victoria at the end of last month after demonstrating the gun at the marine base at Quantico, Va.

"There was great interest shown in the gun," said Mr. Lyle.

Mr. Lyle said he did not know just what acceptance of the weapon by U.S. authorities would mean to its inventor.

"IT DEPENDS"

"It depends on how they wish to use it," he said. He and Mr. Douglas have hopes that it will be widely adopted by the U.S. armed services to replace Tommy guns and Sten guns.

But by the time the gun is accepted, it may be out of date. Mr. Douglas is already working on an improved model.

Pool Plan Suggested

A half-mile-long saltwater pool and a sandy beach at Esquimalt Lagoon has been suggested by Thomas Elakes in a letter to city council.

He said that he wanted official reaction to the plan before making it public.

Tilikum Skipper's Descendant Here

Wanderlust Inherited

Sharon Rausbeck of Portland, Ore., plans to see the world, and this is hardly surprising for a great-granddaughter of Captain John Voss.

Capt. Voss was the Victorian who sailed the dugout canoe Tilikum around the world starting in 1901.

Sharon, 26, was in Victoria for the first time Wednesday as a member of a graduating class of Western Airlines stewardesses.

SPECIAL MEANING
The 23 girls of the class are enjoying themselves in Victoria, but for Miss Rausbeck the trip had special meaning.

"I've always wanted to see the Tilikum," she said. "My grandmother used to tell me stories about it, and it's really becoming well known down in Portland."

"But it's bigger than I thought it would be. Everybody calls it a canoe, and you get a picture of a smaller boat."

PLANNED VISIT
"It's still fantastic, though, to think of it going around the world, simply fantastic."

She had planned to visit Victoria anyway this summer, but then the airlines decided to hold their graduation exercises in Victoria.

The ceremonies will be held

Shawnigan Thefts Reported

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Some $150 worth of tools and about 50 long-play records were reported stolen Tuesday from the summer cottage of Leslie Bray, 1139 Johnson Street, Victoria.

Mr. Bray told police the articles were probably taken last week.

Another theft Tuesday night was reported at the Andrew Simard boomer grounds, on the west side of Shawnigan Lake. Missing are logging tools valued at $150.

Postal Workers Vote to Work

QUEBEC (CP)—Striking letter carriers and postal clerks voted late Wednesday night to return to work at 6 a.m. today. Some 540 Quebec City postal workers went on strike last weekend. The vote to return to work in a secret ballot at the Quebec Labor Temple, was 179 in favor to 121 against.

Shower Theme Hawaiian

A "Guys and Gals" shower honoring popular Oriental couple, Miss May Wong and her groom-to-be, Mr. Edward G. Chow, was given by Hoy and Grace Yip at their home on Pearce Crescent.

A carnation lei was presented to the bride-elect and a lei of vegetables to Mr. Chow. Gifts were contained in a decorated, almost life-size outrigger canoe. Palm trees, grass shack and a five-foot mask of a blinking Hawaiian sun god, combined with soft Hawaiian music, completed the setting for the surprise party.

Hula entertainment and refreshments were enjoyed by Dr. and Mrs. John Wong, Mr. and Mrs. James Sing, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Ming Eng, Mr. and Mrs. William Wong, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. John Lam, Mr. and Mrs. Don Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shui, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Yuen, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tang, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Soo Wong, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. John Chow, the Misses Lena Wong, Kie Dong and Sheila Yip, Mr. Kong Lam and Mr. Jim Wong.

Visiting at the McKenzie Street home of Mrs. Isabella Smith, pictured centre, are her two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Bramhall, left, and Mrs. May Cresswell, at right, both of Liverpool. Mrs. Smith saw her sisters for the first time in 50 years when she went to England early in July last year. Mrs. Bramhall and Mrs. Cresswell have returned the visit and plan to stay until the end of August. This is their first trip to Victoria and Vancouver Island and they are enjoying every minute of their stay.—(Kinsman)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that whenever a couple is divorced, if the husband gets the children it is assumed that:

1. He caught her under the worst possible circumstances or
2. She is a tramp who didn't want to be bothered with the children or

3. She is mentally unstable and/or an alcoholic.

I would like to dispel these notions once and for all, and I am well qualified to do so since I'm a divorcee who is not a tramp, was not caught, nor am I incompetent or alcoholic. I gave up my children simply because I felt they would be better off with their father.

My husband and I never got along. I married him to please a socially ambitious mother. The children adore their father. They tolerate me. They think I am weak, insecure, and addle-brained. They think their father is strong, brilliant and capable. I have never been able to control them. Whatever their father says is gospel.

When we split up several months ago, my husband said: "Shall we ask the children with whom they want to live?" (They are 15, 13 and 12.) I replied, "No, I couldn't bear the humiliation of having them choose. Let's tell them they will live with their father." That settled it and I'm sure they were relieved.

So, here's a different kind of letter for your column, Ann Landers. Label it "Education." Sincerely yours —ODD WOMAN OUT.

Dear Woman: You do not sound weak, insecure or addle-brained to me, but you have sadly underestimated yourself. Good luck in making a new life — and thanks for the "education."

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing because my 14-year-old niece asked me to. I don't know the answer but I'm hoping you will.

My niece is a very sweet person and has many friends, both girls and boys. They are allowed to come to the house to sing, dance, play records, and just visit, which I think is perfectly fine. The problem is the girl's mother.

She's in her middle 30's and has five children. The woman wears a bikini from the first day of spring until snow hits the ground. She knows she has an outstanding figure and apparently she wants everyone else to know it, too. The little high school boys who come to the house look awl kook until I think their eyes are going to pop out of their heads.

The bikini this mother wears have the narrowest straps I've ever seen. The panties are little more than what the strip-teasers in a burlesque house wear. I think it is positively indecent and so does her 14-year-old daughter. Do you feel that this woman is right in her insistence that she can wear anything she pleases in her own home.

—G. R. M.

Dear G. R. M.: I believe a woman who is alone in her home has the right to wear anything she pleases or nothing at all, if she pleases — provided the shades are down and the doors bolted. When others are present, however, it is indecent to go around half-naked (or in her case seven-eighths naked is more accurate.)

I hope this mother will put on a house dress when her children and their friends are home — before the daughter starts to meet her pals around the corner.

Canadians Receive Mementos of Flight

Three Canadians, all female, who were passengers on British European Airways' history-making flight last June 10, when a BEA Trident from Paris landed at London's Heathrow airport without the pilot handling the controls, recently received a commemorative certificate and a memento of the flight from Alan C. Mills, manager in Canada for BEA.

It was the first time in history that passengers aboard a commercial aircraft had been landed by automatic pilot.

The three Canadians among the 78 passengers aboard were Miss Eileen G. Shaw and Miss M. Yalowski, both of Winnipeg, and Mrs. John J. Brown, of Meaford, Ont.

Each received a certificate signed by Anthony H. Milward, BEA chairman, and Captain Eric Poole, who was in command of the flight. The certificate states that the recipient was "a passenger on the world's first commercial passenger aircraft to make an automatic touchdown." Each of the three Canadians also received an inscribed compact bearing the BEA crest.

Disrupts Game

WHITTINGTON BAR-RACKS, England (CP) — Play was held up for several minutes at the women's golf championship on a Staffordshire course here when a mouse scurried across the green and into the hole as a player was about to putt. A man was summoned to remove the rodent. Then play resumed.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hyslop, Nanaimo, formerly of Victoria, announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Jane, to Mr. Francis William Gregory, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil W. Gregory, Nanaimo. The wedding will take place at 2:30 p.m., August 21, in St. Paul's Anglican Church with Canon H. Greenhalgh officiating. Miss Hyslop received her Bachelor of Home Economics degree from University of British Columbia and is a member of the Delta Gamma sorority.

The forthcoming marriage is announced between Anne Knott and Mr. John James Carlson. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. R. L. Knott, 913 Sluggitt Road, Brentwood, and the groom-elect is the son of Gen. and Mrs. Ralph Phelps, Spokane, Wash. The wedding will take place at 2 p.m., August 14, in St. Joseph's Church, Burnside Road, with Father W. Mudge officiating.—(Photos by Campbell Studio)

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

Does Saanich want tourists to have a good time or does it want them to get lost?

That is the question that is bugging Joy Perkins these summer days. Not only Joy and husband, Sam, who own Surridge 62 at Mount Douglas, but most Saanich operators of hotels, restaurants and other tourist businesses are not only bugged but worried.

"Tourists just up our broomsticks on the ferry but when they try to find their way here they often get hopelessly lost," says Joy Perkins. "We get phone calls anywhere from Gordon Head to Elk Lake and sometimes even farther afield."

"If we put up an illegal sign our business increases by 20 per cent in one day and this happens to other operators, too," says Joy.

For it is illegal to put up a roadside sign in Saanich.

So far, so good. Who wants to see the roadside plastered with bill boards and littered with any kind of a sign that a person chooses? Not me, that's for sure.

But surely there is an intelligent way to solve this problem.

It must be true that Saanich would like their share of tourists and that they would like to show them the best.

And it is also true that Saanich doesn't want to mar her beautiful countryside.

A dilemma? Not according to Joy Perkins. She has the answer and will be presenting her ideas in a brief to Saanich council on Monday evening.

Briefly, Joy's proposal would be to see adequate directional signs erected without sacrificing the beauty or views and to promote Saanich as a friendly and beautiful community, an easily accessible from Victoria and unique in tourist attractions.

Joy will also present a sample sketch of what she thinks the signs, uniform in size and coloring, should be like.

waters with mountains in the background.

Under the picture of Caddy is printed her suggested slogan "Saanich, a Little Slice of Paradise." Then in the lower corners in small letters would be, Population 56,000, and Please Drive Carefully.

Not more than four directional arrows would hang under this sign.

The number and placement of these signs Joy thinks should be at the discretion of the council and she would like to see them up by May 1 of 1966.

The initial cost, Joy suggests should be borne by the municipality but that amortization could be made by assessing a monthly rate for merchants using signs and that the cost of lettering the arrows should also be borne by the individual merchants.

There is a lot more to Joy's brief but that is the gist of it. One more point to her brief will be the suggestion that The Legend of Caddy be distributed, especially during the tourist season.

The Perkins family came here three years ago from Regina. A holiday here "sold" them on moving west.

They have operated Surridge 62 since arriving and this year Joy concocted another specialty, The English Rose cocktail.

Back in Regina, Joy Perkins had her own TV show for six years and before that, her own radio show.

This fall it is back to university for Joy where she will pick up her studies that she deserted for marriage. A full arts course, majoring in psychology and philosophy is her ambition.

Sam, who at the moment is hitchhiking in Europe, after working his way there in a millionaire's yacht from Bermuda, will be entering his third year at University of Victoria this fall. Younger son, Mike, is in Grade XI.

Long Time Friends

When you read the next sentence you'll probably think I've slipped up but it's not so. Mrs. F. R. W. Gow has been staying with Mrs. F. R. W. Nixon on Roslyn Road. Its those initials.

The long time friends left Wednesday for a two or three week trip up-island. They will be at Qualicum and Comox part of the time but plans, when they left, were a little open.

Mrs. Gow, as Jean Donald was brought up in Victoria.

Montreal for a Year

The William Vogels are a bit divided about their impending trip to the east. With year-old daughter Marge they will be going to Montreal toward the end of August where Bill will enter the Defence Research Board School at McGill to study for his PhD. He has been with the Pacific and attended St. Margaret's School. She has many old friends here and has been entertained a lot since arriving from Ottawa, her first visit back in 15 years.

In Ottawa, Jean Gow works as a free lance writer for CBC. She is apt to play down her job but I've heard that it is quite an important one and that she is a research specialist. That entails important occasions such as Royal Tours. She will be back on the job early in September.

Finds Relatives

Mrs. Olive Wilson is really quite surprised by the response to her appeal for United Empire Loyalists to come forth if they were interested in reforming an organization here.

Olive Wilson has even found relatives that she didn't know about, descendants of her grandfather's brother living here. Then there is a family who lived next door to the same grandfather, the late John Valentine Belter in Nanaimo, Ont.

People have written from Nanaimo, Deep Cove and from New Westminster even though there is a UEL branch in Vancouver.

However, with so many people out of town during July and August, Mrs. Wilson says it will probably be September before any action will be taken on formation of a branch here.

Wendy Barton Feted

Miss Wendy Barton, July bride-to-be, was feted at a miscellaneous shower by the Misses Marilyn Miller and Lesley Brander at the Clive Drive home of the latter.

The guest of honor received a yellow rosebud corsage while her mother, Mrs. A. J. Barton, and mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. W. G. Brander received pink carnations. Grandmother of the groom-to-be, Mrs. William Flowers, was given white carnations.

Gifts were in a pink and white basket and the same colors were used to decorate the room.

Guests were Mrs. J. Charity, Mrs. D. Marty, Mrs. D. Miller, Mrs. William McKinnon, Mrs. Anna Kusq, Mrs. Julie Davis, and the Misses Peggy Godsky, Wendy Anderson, Diane Miller, Patay and Susan Charity, Carol

Tiny Pearls Highlight Bride's Wedding Gown

Following their recent marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Charles Steggle left for a honeymoon trip up-island, en route to their new home in Montreal, P.Q.

Rev. E. Laura Butler officiated at the ceremony in Metropolitan United Church which united Daisy Patricia O'Sullivan, the foster daughter of Mrs. Ann Mary Eales, 3147 Harriet Road, and the son of Mrs. A. Steggle, Verdun, P.Q., and the late Mr. Steggle.

Mr. E. Boothroyd played the organ during the ceremony. Given in marriage by her brother, F. W. O'Sullivan, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of pearly silk, styled on princess lines. Sequins and pearls highlighted the scalloped neckline of the gown and similar highlights accented the skirt hemline. Her tiered veil misted from a lace coronet.

starred with seed pearls and rhinestones. Mauve Cattleya orchids and feathered carnations were in her cascade bouquet.

A powder-blue gown, topped with a lace bodice was worn by matron of honor, Mrs. M. Dvorak. Bridesmaids, the Misses Mary Ann Carter and Kathy Wornald, wore similar gowns in pink and blue tones. Headpieces were rhinestone tiaras and they carried colonial bouquets of feathered pink carnations.

Flower girl, Sherry Carter, wore a frock of turquoise tulle and floral bonnet en tone. She carried a basket of white carnations.

Michael Dvorak was best man. Ushering guests to their seats were Bobby Carter and Bobby Wornald.

A three-tier wedding cake, topped with doves holding wedding rings, centred the bride's table for the reception following in Norway House.

George Blyth proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on the honeymoon trip, the new Mrs. Steggle donned a cherry red two-piece wool crepe suit, accented with white accessories and corsage of red roses and white carnations.

Tomatoes Smoke Safer?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Soviet Union now claims it knows how to produce harmless cigarettes—by grafting tobacco plants onto tomatoes.

According to the foreign technical translation department of Electro-Optical Systems Inc., which picked up the report, Russian experts say "no nicotine was found in the leaves of the tobacco plant."

The brief report ended with the question: "So what happened to the tomatoes?"

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Baird, 987 Easter Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their younger daughter, Betty Lorraine, to Mr. Gordon A. Hansen, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hansen, 2525 Graham Street. The wedding will take place at 7:30 p.m., August 21, in St. John's Anglican Church with Canon George Biddle officiating.—(Campbell Studios)

Balmain's Collection Big, Bold, Beautiful

PARIS (Reuters)—Pierre Balmain's new jolte madame collection shown Tuesday was big, bold and beautiful.

The fashion designer who has dressed more queens and movie stars than any other Paris fashion house based his winter silhouette on the wide-shouldered geometric cut which is emerging as today's new look.

Balmain's slender, supple silhouettes made his short models look taller while the tunics and biased-banded hemlines took inches off the tallest model.

Balmain's boldness emerged in his slinky evening gowns slit to the knee on one side. His daytime hemlines, which neatly covered the knee, were, however, restrained in comparison with other houses which have shown here so far.

The basic silhouettes were lightly shaped chemises and back-buttoned tunics. Unpadded shoulders appeared wider through the new squared cuts. COLLARS SMALLER Small collars were designed to set off the big, important hats, which showed a definite Chinese influence. The hats were floppy Tibetan toques made of luxury furs such as mink or chinchilla and big square tamboorines and berets shaped like Chinese pillows.

Hemline interest was a recurrent theme through the collection. Suits in oversized dog-tooth checks or muted plaids had five-inch-wide bias hemlines flaring slightly just above the knee. Tunic dresses and back-buttoned pin-stripe smocks were shown at mid-thighs, suggesting over slim undershirts of matching crepe or wool jersey fabrics.

Britannia Lodge No. 215 of Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association will hold a whist and crib party followed by social at 8 p.m., August 3, in the Orange Hall, 725 Courtney Street. Visitors welcome.

Baked Salad Mainstay For Summer Dining

The baked salad is a particularly apropos menu mainstay for summer dining. It's a hearty, pleasantly satisfying dish that needs few accompaniments to complete a main course: a fruit or vegetable and perhaps a bread will suffice. From the cook's viewpoint it takes little time to put together and there's no "standing over a hot stove" because the dish does all its cooking in the oven. Such a salad is corned beef casserole salad, a honey of a flavorful, colorful, delightful main dish for this time of year.

There's plenty of corned beef in the salad—two cans, in fact—so give it excellent staying qualities and uniquely satisfying flavor. Celery serves as a vegetable of the menu, and provides tempting crispness that isn't lost during baking. Mayonnaise blends the flavors and keeps the salad properly moist without heaviness. Crumbled potato chips to do double duty as garnish and crisp topping, lending to beautiful brown and irresistible goodness as the dish bakes.

Accompany corned beef casserole salad with chilled grapefruit sections and saltines or garlic bread sticks; follow it with something chocolate: a parfait or sundae and coffee, or a homemade chocolate soda that doubles as dessert and beverage.

CORNED BEEF CASSEROLE SALAD

Two cans (12 oz. each) corned beef, flaked; 1 cup chopped celery; 1/2 cup chopped olives or pickle relish; 2 hard-boiled eggs, chopped; 1/2 cup chopped onion; 1 tablespoon prepared mustard; dash pepper; 1/2 cup mayonnaise; 1 cup crushed potato chips.

Combine all ingredients except potato chips. Place in 1 1/2-quart baking dish. Top with chips. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Our Man In The Kitchen

HYMAN GOLDBERG

This is the Feast Day of Norway's patron saint, Olaf II, also known as Olaf the Stout, or Olaf the Fat. He was King of Norway from 1015 to 1023, and he succeeded in making Norway a Christian country, a task in which his predecessor, Olaf I, had failed.

He also succeeded in uniting the country politically, but in doing so he angered the nobility and had to flee the country when the nobles sided with King Canute of England and Denmark. It wasn't until years after his death that he became universally admired by the Norwegians and was regarded as their patron saint.

In the summer in Norway, they like a hot sauce on cold cuts of meat which they call:

KOLDT SMOTT SAUS

Two tablespoons butter, margarine or oil; 3 scallions (green onions) minced fine with some greenery; 2 tablespoons flour; 1/2 teaspoon (or more, to taste) dry mustard; 2 cups bouillon (2 cubes dissolved in 2 cups boiling water); 1 tablespoon parsley, minced fine; 1/4 cup dry white wine; 1 tablespoon chutney, minced fine.

This sauce, which will be about 2 1/2 cups, is great on cold cuts of any kind, and it is especially good on paper-thin slices of roast beef.

Heat up the butter and saute the minced scallions until they are soft and just turning golden. Stir in the flour and dry mustard and add the boiling bouillon, stirring rapidly. Add the parsley, wine and the minced chutney, bring to the boil, then lower the heat and cook for a few minutes, stirring all the while. Pour it all into a heated gravy boat or bowl, and let everyone help himself to the

Quiet Wedding

Jo Anne Kathleen Henderson, daughter of Mr. G. Henderson, Goldstream Avenue, and Mrs. W. R. Cannon, Elk Lake Road, became the bride of Mr. Garfield Roderick Hemson, son of Mr. M. Hemson and Mrs. J. Clark, Nanaimo, at a quiet wedding ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white sheath gown with lace overskirt. Her bouffant veil fell from a single satin rosebud headpiece and she wore a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Miss Susan Godfrey, maid of honor, was in a yellow A-line dress and Mrs. D. Thomas, bridesmatron, wore a pale green suit and white accessories.

Mr. W. Batters proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed. The newlyweds will make their home at Courtenay.

Tigers Protest Working Conditions!

At a recent meeting of the directors of Tigers International, Sales Executive Branch, a resolution was passed protesting excessive work load and lack of fringe benefits. The President pointed out that where tigers were once a relatively leisured class, they now faced a round-the-clock schedule in promoting such diverse products as breakfast foods, gasoline, automobiles and detergents. Many tigers were suffering from stress and exhaustion. It was noted that many humans had discovered "Black Label Beer" to be a pleasant and refreshing beverage which was particularly acceptable after a hard day's work. A committee was set up to investigate the possibility of including an issue of "Black Label Beer" as part of any future working contract.

Nine out of ten working tigers prefer BLACK LABEL BEER!

Victorian

Forestry Chief Named

H. B. Forse, at present in charge of the B.C. Forest Service protection division in Victoria, has been appointed the new district forester, Vancouver. It was announced Wednesday.

He will be replaced here by W. C. Phillips, at present district forester, Kamloops.

APPOINTMENTS

In a round of new appointments following these changes: W. E. L. Young, now in charge of forest surveys and inventory in Victoria, becomes district forester of the new Cariboo forest district; A. H. Dixon becomes district forester, Kamloops; N. A. McRae, district forester, Prince George; H. M. Fogus, district forester, Prince Rupert.

Private Trips

Ambulance Calls Cost More

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council agreed Tuesday to an ambulance financing formula which Mayor Bill Rathie said would probably result in a 37 increase in the cost of private ambulance calls.

At the same time, New Westminster city council decided to continue its present ambulance subsidy and maintain existing prices.

The two actions followed a decision Monday by the inter-municipal ambulance committee to end for the time being its attempt to have the provincial government pay the full cost of ambulance service.

ACCEPT

Vancouver decided to accept an offer of the provincial government to pay $25 per trip for persons on social welfare. Present rate is $20.

A condition of the offer is that the rate paid by private citizens using ambulances be increased by $7 to $25 per trip plus $1 a mile.

Final details of the Vancouver plan will be worked out by a four-man committee headed by Mayor Rathie. It could save the city as much as $62,200 next year.

Earlier this month, labor unions contributed $800 to restore 24-hour service until July 31 after New Westminster stopped its subsidy and ambulances were available only from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Shipbuilding Record Set

LONDON (AP) — World construction of merchant ships reached a record in the second quarter of the year, Lloyd's Register of Shipping reported. It said 1,709 steamships and motorships totalling 11,059,606 tons were on the ways, an increase of 118,187 tons over the first quarter.

Dam Workers Die in Sand

Lightning

Forest Crews Alerted

Forest Service air patrol pilots went on "red alert" in many parts of British Columbia Wednesday, following a second consecutive night of heavy lightning strikes.

Crews were kept beside their planes as more than 500 firefighters worked on 200 forest fires. None were considered dangerous.

The Forest Service said lightning caused the majority of 91 new forest fires that broke out in B.C.'s five forest forest districts overnight.

They said more were probably ignited but were smoldering and unseen. These fires — sleepers — will probably burst into flames in a day or two, said a spokesman.

The weather forecast is for continued lightning activity across the province.

HAZARD CLIMBS

Meanwhile, fire hazards continued to increase.

A power saw was blamed for a fire near Port McNeill. It covered 60 acres today and 40 men were fighting it.

There were no large fires in the province.

Fires by district, with new fires bracketed, were: Vancouver, 28 (12), hazard high and increasing; Kamloops, 46 (24), hazard high; Nelson, 77 (20), hazard high; Prince George, 24 (12), hazard moderate to high; Prince Rupert, 27 (23), hazard high and increasing.

James Bay

Parking Rules Changed

Parking restrictions involving large areas in James Bay will be posted soon in an attempt to control day-long parking in that part of the city.

New orders to be invoked by the city engineer's department cover an area slightly larger than the civic precinct which will become a one-hour zone. The industrial zone west of Montreal and part of Pendray will become a two-hour zone and a third area adjoining the precinct, opposite Beacon Hill Park will be designated as residential parking.

This will enable residents and persons having business in the district to park without restriction.

Other designed two-hour zones are located in the industrial area near Ogden Point shipyard and freight docks effecting during working hours.

Sockeye Run

Fishermen Enjoy Bonanza

VANCOUVER (CP) — Individual fishermen took salmon catches valued at more than $1,000 Tuesday as a 48-hour Sockeye fishing period opened on the Fraser River.

Federal fisheries officials estimated a Sockeye spawning run upstream to the Quesset River would yield more than 100,000 fish worth $200,000 in the two-day period.

A similar 48-hour fishing period opened Wednesday on Puget Sound in Washington. Canadian and United States fishing fleets have each been limited to a catch of 1,000,000 Sockeye salmon this year.

Fisheries officials estimate this will permit an escapement of an additional 1,000,000 Sockeye.

Garden Notes

Prune for Health

By M. V. CHESNUT

One job that should be tackled pretty soon now is the pruning of black currant bushes. Not that there is any particular rush—lots of gardeners leave the pruning until late fall or even early spring—but there are some very definite advantages in cutting out the old fruited wood as soon as possible after the berries have been gathered.

You see, the biggest portion of next year's crop will be borne on this year's new wood, and in order for these happy, succulent young shoots to ripen and harden properly, they need all the sunshine and air they can get. They never develop properly when they are choked, congested and shaded by a lot of useless old woody shoots.

Whenever possible, take out the old black-barked wood by making your cuts low down on the bush, so that new growth is encouraged to sprout from near the base. Unlike other fruits, suckers coming from below ground level are especially valuable and should be cherished until after they have borne their quota of fruit. Some black currant varieties have a spreading, drooping habit of growth, and with these, the low outer branches should be taken off first.

In England and Scotland, the commercial growing of black currants is enjoying quite a boom at the moment principally because black currant juice, with its tangy flavor and very high vitamin C content, is supplanting orange juice as the national breakfast starter. The processors can't get enough fruit to meet the demand, and the high prices offered have led to extensive new plantings of bushes and some entirely new techniques in growing.

For instance, the pruning of a black currant bush in the old way was a job for a skilled craftsman, or at least for someone who could distinguish new wood from old and exercise some judgment in the use of the knife. Such slow, skilful and highly-paid talent was out of place in the plantations, and so the hedgerow system was devised.

In this method, the bushes are planted very close together, only 30 inches apart in the row, but the alleys between the rows are wide enough to permit tractor cultivation. The pruning is simplicity itself—alternate bushes are cut to the ground every second year—an operation which requires no judgment or experience at all. Combined with heavy applications of fertilizer and a thick mulch over the roots, these plantations are producing record high tonnages of quality fruit.

I mention this merely to illustrate the need for really hard pruning and heavy feeding for black currants. I see no reason, though, why such a hedgerow system shouldn't be adapted to the ordinary backyard fruit plot, for with such close spacing the home gardener could double the number of bushes in the same space. It is true that only half the bushes bear a crop each year, but under this simplified system, the bushes are always young and vigorous and the harvest substantial.

ART BUCHWALD Backgrounds Big Surprise

Injury Added to Injury

After the famous oil fiasco on the Riviera when the aircraft carrier Shangri La dumped 2,600 gallons of oil on Cannes, the United States has been thinking of ways of making it up to the French.

Different plans were submitted by various departments. One was to offer the French the New York World's Fair. Another was to put a Frenchman on the U.S. Supreme Court. Still a third was to buy all France's surplus agricultural products so that it could resolve its differences with the Common Market.

For one reason or another all the suggestions were rejected. But finally the CIA, of all people, came up with a brilliant suggestion.

They decided that one of the nicest gestures the United States could make towards France was to present to President de Gaulle a beautiful, bound photograph album containing pictures of his country taken from the air.

These pictures in color would be by way of saying, "We're sorry about the oil, but we hope this album shows you how much we hold your nation in our esteem."

In order for it to be a surprise for de Gaulle, everyone was sworn to secrecy about the project. The CIA asked the U.S. air force in Ramstein, Germany, to take the photographs, as they were afraid, if they were taken by any U.S. planes stationed in France, somebody would probably get wind of it.

The top leather binder in the United States was ordered to produce an album worthy of being presented to a head of state.

"Operation Surprise du Chef," as it was called, was put into action. For days American pilots circled the French countryside taking beautiful photographs with their cameras. When the pictures were developed, a Life magazine editor selected the best ones for the album, and the others were destroyed.

There were a few close calls. Once an American plane was forced down in a French vineyard and the pilot, following instructions, ate a poisoned truffle rather than reveal what he was up to.

Another time a pilot parachuted over Chartres, but his cover story, that he always wanted to see what the Chartres cathedral looked like from the air, was accepted by the French authorities without suspicion.

Finally the album was almost completed except for an aerial shot around Pierrelatte in the Rhone Valley, beyond Lyons. This is one of President de Gaulle's favorite areas in France and it was felt that without a picture of it the book would be incomplete.

So a last plane was sent from Germany for the specific purpose of shooting this lovely, picturesque town. But unknown to the CIA or the air force, a French atomic bomb complex is located at Pierrelatte and the French have been very touchy about having it photographed. As a matter of fact, the French became so angered when the plane started taking the pictures that they demanded the film after the plane landed, and they refused to accept the explanation that the photos were taken as a surprise for President de Gaulle.

Even when the Americans produced the inscribed leather album, the French were still skeptical, and instead of appreciating all the trouble the United States went to to give de Gaulle a gift, they sent a stiff note to the U.S. embassy.

President Johnson knew nothing about the surprise and, when he heard what a flap it caused, he was obviously furious. He told the French Ambassador, "Ah! I'm sorry, Mr. Ambassador, all I had told them to do was take pictures of Mars."

Reflected Glory

SYDNEY HARRIS

I recall receiving a circular some time ago, from a pianist who advertised his forthcoming recital with the phrase, "Studied with Arthur Schnabel." I happened to know that he took exactly six lessons from Schnabel in Europe about 30 years ago.

This clinging to the coattails of the mighty and renowned is particularly prevalent in the arts. Mascagni, the operatic composer, was fond of telling about the time an organ-grinder appeared beneath his window and began to play the famous "Intermezzo" from his opera, Cavalleria Rusticana.

The organ-grinder played at such a fast tempo that the composer could not stand it. Mascagni rushed down to the street, seized the handle of the instrument, and began to turn it at the proper speed, explaining to the organ-grinder exactly how it should be played.

The next morning the organ-grinder appeared outside the composer's house with a huge sign in front of his instrument, reading: "Pupil of the celebrated Mascagni."

Otto Kahn, the financier and philanthropist, was once driving through New York when he saw a sign outside a dinky business establishment: "Samuel Kahn, cousin of Otto Kahn." The financier was charged and ordered his lawyers to have the sign changed, whatever expense it might entail.

A week later, he drove past the same place again to see if his instructions had been followed. The offending sign had been changed. It now read: "Samuel Kahn, formerly cousin of Otto Kahn."

The best rebuke I can recall against the blatant sort of self-advertisement came when Frank Harris, the English author, met the great French writer, Anatole France, quite by accident in a cathedral near Paris.

"I am delighted to meet you at last, M. France," bubbled Harris. "I have long felt that we two should meet."

Puzzled, Anatole France politely asked who the gentleman was.

"Like yourself," Harris boomed, "I am a genius."

The Frenchman shrugged. "Perhaps so," he said gently. "But it is wise to remember that even a prostitute can advertise herself as a 'merchant of pleasure.' Good day, monsieur."

How rare is the man who can say, like Robert Benchley, "It took me 15 years to discover I had no talent for writing, but I couldn't give it up because by that time I was too famous."

Others, if they cannot achieve fame on their own, seek the reflected glory of the great—unaware that the Schnabels of the world are unique precisely because they depend on absolutely no one else but themselves.

Worry—and Live! Says

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

A new study of worry habits among Americans reveals as factually true the paradox religious teachers have known for a long time. People with anxieties have a greater capacity for happiness than those who worry less.

This is one reason why the "peace of mind" theories rarely lead to personal happiness.

Animals are docile and therefore capable of undisturbed contentment. But men need to be involved in life—and the more we participate in the complicated workings of our society, the more likely we are to be enmeshed in its toils.

There is little effective escape from life's continuing circle: the more direct involvement, the more chance for personal fulfillment; yet the more participation, the more chance for heart-break.

We cannot truly know the joys of life unless we are sensitive, introspective, critical of values. Yet, these personal qualities are also at the root of human frustration and disappointment.

Higher education makes a man more capable of an awareness of the satisfactions life has to offer. But the educated will aim for higher goals and thus expose themselves to greater frustrations and disappointments.

Vigorous-minded, spirited folk are less apathetic about life, do not passively resign themselves to the status-quo. They are busy analyzing and questioning, ruggedly pursuing the problems of society.

Their happiness does not come from arrival at a destination; it is derived from the knowledge that they are travelling. But, they too must know unhappiness—this is the price they pay for enthusiasm in tackling life.

The emotionally mature man does not long for that vain "peace of mind" which can be acquired only at the cost of not having a mind. He does not look for trouble nor immolate himself pursuing unnecessary worries.

But he understands that anxiety is the twin of happiness. You can't have one without the other. The beginning of wisdom, Scripture teaches, is the fear of the Lord. The end of wisdom, it might be added, is the fear of fear. For only if we are capable of fear, are we sensitive enough to become fully human.

Sybil Sends Kate To Stay with Liz

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Sybil Barton Jordan, who once swore "I will never allow the father of my children to be Elizabeth Taylor's fifth husband," not only allowed him to be Number 5 for Liz, but has now relented to the point where she has sent their eight-year-old Kate to California to stay with Elizabeth, Richard Burton, and all of Elizabeth's assorted children—the two Wilding boys, Lisa Todd and the adopted Maria.

All are staying at the great big house in Beverly Hills rented by Elizabeth and Richard for the duration of their co-starring film, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?

How it came about was simply that a magazine had the happy idea of doing a Christmas lay-out of famous fathers, each with his daughter. Burton was approached, said "Okay, but you will have to clear it with Sybil."

To everyone's astonishment, especially Elizabeth's, Sybil said, "Fine."

Harve Presnell's Boys and Girls Together for Metro—(and they must change that title) is his last for the studio. Except for Molly Brown, Harve has not been too happy with his assignments. He aims to freelance for a while to see how the other half lives.

Claude Trell, director of the University of Victoria's new summer school of oral French, figures the experiment is already a success.

"They're speaking English with a French accent," he says with a touch of wonderment.

Not all the 90 students are doing it, of course, but even the slowest is speaking the language of La Maison Francaise after three weeks of night-and-day practice.

LIVING IN

Most of them are living at Uvic's Margaret Newton Hall. "Comment on va?" (how are you?) asks a passing instructor. "Pas mal," (not bad), replies a young woman high school teacher instead of the stock "tres bien."

That's how they measure progress in the month-long course which ends this weekend.

EIGHT INSTRUCTORS

Dr. Trell, assistant professor of French at the University of B.C., has been directing eight instructors, all from Laval University in Quebec City.

Students pay up to $180 for tuition, room and board. They spend three hours a day in intensive instruction, with no more than 15 to a class.

At the university's language laboratory they listen to tape recordings, repeat the words and then listen to themselves on the play-back.

THEATRE

In between there are films, recitals, sing-songs and sores. On Thursday there will even be a theatrical performance, staged by the students themselves.

It's a non-credit course. The only reward is fluency in a second language.

Students, mostly teachers, come from all over the West and even as far away as Nova Scotia. There are a few university students.

REALLY TRYING

"I expected to get sorority types," says Mr. Trell. "But they aren't; they are all really trying."

The Maison Francaise method is to immerse the student in French, as he would be if he stepped off the plane in Paris.

That's why students eat off red checkered tablecloths in their own enclave at the university cafeteria, and complain eloquently about the food over decorative miniature Eiffel Towers.

NO MANIA

The no-English rule is generally followed, but it's not a mania.

"I sometimes hear voices and knock at a door if I hear English," Dr. Trell confesses.

The poorest students at first were the real Anglo-Saxons—afraid to speak French. They almost seemed to recoil when they heard it.

PLUNGE IN

They were afraid of sounding comical at trying French, the director thinks now.

They tried a bit, and finally relaxed.

"This last week they just seemed to plunge in."

Beating Claim Rejected

Court Finds Confession False

A man who claimed city detectives had used physical force and blackmail to extract a confession from him was acquitted Wednesday of a break-in at Blue Bird Cafe.

Defendant Dale Ashton's accusations in city court against the detectives were rejected by Magistrate William Oatler.

But the magistrate found sufficient evidence in the testimony of two witnesses to justify an acquittal.

TWO WITNESSES

One of the witnesses, a waiter at the Drake Hotel, appeared for the prosecution. The other, called by defense counsel, Lyman Robinson, was a man recently convicted in connection with the Blue Bird break-in.

Although the magistrate found that Detective Edward Hardy and John Mason had followed correct procedures in obtaining a confession, he suggested that Ashton, whom he described as unstable, might nevertheless have confessed falsely.

The magistrate also repeated an observation he has made previously in court: persons giving statements to police must be allowed to do so in their own handwriting.

Ashton, of 1843 Island Highway, was charged with a July 6 break-in at Blue Bird Cafe, 708 Johnson. He had pleaded not guilty.

He was the third man to be charged in connection with the break-in, where an iron safe was stolen. The safe was recovered shortly afterwards, when it fell off the getaway truck.

TWO CONVICTED

The two other men were convicted. They were Ernest Falconer, sentenced to two years for the break-in and theft of the safe, and Clifford Piper, sentenced to six months for breaking and entering and theft, and unlawful possession of an iron safe.

Ashton made his accusation against the detectives Friday, during a trial-within-a-trial to test the admissibility of a confession he had signed.

NOT PUBLISHERABLE

His evidence was not immediately publishable, however, because Magistrate Oatler announced at adjournment he might turn the trial into a preliminary hearing. The law forbids the press in reports of preliminary hearings to mention the fact either of a confession or a trial-within-a-trial.

Ashton testified while he was being questioned in city police headquarters, Det. Hardy "slammed me on the side of the head."

The statement brought a gasp of dissent from Det. Hardy, who was seated a few feet away from the witness box.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF KENNETH FRASER FOOT, formerly of 2445 Keweenaw Avenue, Oak Bay, B.C., deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that creditors and others having claims against the estate of the above deceased are hereby required to send them to The Royal Trust Company, 1204 Government Street, Victoria, British Columbia, before the 15th day of August, 1965, after which date the executor will distribute the said estate among the parties entitled thereto having regard only to the claims of which they then have notice.

LAND REGISTRY ACT

SECTION 103
In the matter of ELLEN MARY MASON, Certificate of Title No. 26314-C and Southern 89 of Lots 11 and 12, of part of Sections 23 and 24, Victoria District, Plan 368.

Proof having been filed in my office of the loss of said Certificate I HEREBY give notice of my intention as the Registrar of said Certificate to the expiration of one month from the first publication hereof to issue to the above-named a Duplicate Certificate of Title in lieu of said Certificate.

Any person having information with reference to such lost Certificate is requested to communicate with the undersigned.

Dated this 18th day of July, 1965 at the Land Registry Office, Victoria, B.C.

A. Howard, Deputy Registrar
Victoria Land Registration District

LAND ACT

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO APPLY TO LEASE LAND
In Land Registration District of Victoria, B.C., and situate off CHAD ISLAND, Victoria District.

Take notice that Read Hayden, intends to apply for a lease of the following described land:

Commencing at a post planted at N.W.M. on the N.W. corner of the shore of Chad Island, Victoria District, then West 200 feet; thence South, 700 feet; thence East to N.W.M.; thence North-westerly and North-easterly along N.W.M. to the point of commencement, and containing five acres, more or less, for the purpose of establishing a marina.

J. R. C. KIRK, B.C.L.S.,
Agent for Read Hayden.
Dated July 19th, 1965.

fact of the safe falling off the truck had struck him as funny, and he had told Ashton of the incident.

Cross-examining, Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett asked Falconer the name of the third man.

"I prefer not to give his name," Falconer replied.

MET IN JAIL
Mr. Birkett reminded Falconer that he was under oath.

"All I know him as is Jim," Falconer said. "I met him when I was in jail before in Vancouver."

Ashton then testified. He said that on the evening of July 6 he had been in the Drake Hotel until closing time at 12:30 a.m., with the exception of a half-hour between 9:45 and 10:15, when he had gone out for coffee.

Asked by Mr. Birkett where he obtained the information in the confession, Ashton said some was what he read in the papers and some what he had been told by detectives.

WEAKEST EVIDENCE

"I disregard that statement," he insisted.

Mr. Robinson, in a brief summing-up for the defense, cited law authorities who said that confessions are the weakest and most suspicious of all evidence, and that it is very rare for prosecution to enter a confession when other evidence is satisfactory.

Giving judgment, Magistrate Oatler noted that a prosecution witness, George Price, a waiter at the Drake Hotel, had testified Friday that he had seen Ashton in the beer parlor from 11 p.m. to 12:30, the time during which the crime had been committed.

NOT PARTICIPANT

Then Falconer, admittedly a convicted felon, had said Ashton was not a participant in the crime.

With regard to the confession, the magistrate said Ashton seemed a "very unstable young man."

Twenty Hurt

In Oil Fire
CARACAS (Reuters)—Twenty firefighters were injured — two severely — after terrorists dynamited a Mobil Oil Company pipeline near Anaco, about 350 miles east of this Venezuelan city, a company spokesman reported.

The detectives had compiled substantially with Judges Rules in taking the statement, although it should have been in Ashton's handwriting.

Following the magistrate's remarks, Mr. Robinson summoned Falconer to testify.

Falconer said he had committed the break-in with Piper and a man he had known in Vancouver. Ashton had nothing to do with the crime, he said.

IN BEER PARLOR

He had seen Ashton in the beer parlor of the Drake Hotel earlier in the evening of July 6, and again shortly before midnight, after the break-in had been committed.

"I was laughing pretty hard at the time," Falconer said. The

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF SAANICH ZONING BY-LAW NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that all persons who deem themselves affected by the following proposed by-laws will be afforded an opportunity to be heard before the Municipal Council on the matters contained therein at a Public Hearing to be held in the Council Chamber, Municipal Hall, 411 West Saanich Road, on TUESDAY, August 3rd, 1965, commencing at 7:30 p.m.:

- (a) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 27"—To revise Lot 2, Plan 1269 and Lot 1, Plan 1218, all in Section 24, Victoria District, Plan 402C, Southwest corner of Shelbourne and Midland Streets, for medium density apartment use.
- (b) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 28"—To revise the Southeastern 1.6 acres of Lots 41 and 42, Section 21, Lake District, Plan 328, West side of 5000 Block Cordova Bay Road, just north of Gloria Place, to permit professional office space in conjunction with retail use.
- (c) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 29"—To revise Lot 2, Plan 1269 and Lot 1, Plan 1218, all in Section 24, Victoria District, East side of Shelby Street, just South of Midland Avenue, for low density apartment use.
- (d) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 30"—To revise Lot 3, Plan 875 and Lot 1 and the Remainder of Lot 2, Plan 861, all in Section 23, Victoria District, East side of Richmond Road between Haultain Street and Kings Road, for medium density apartment use.
- (e) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 31"—To revise Part of Lot 14, Block 1, Section 48, Victoria District, Plan 1178, Northwest corner of Patricia Bay Highway and Ralph Street, for printing and newspaper publication use.
- (f) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 32"—To revise Lot 9 and the Remainder of Lot 8, Section 1, Victoria District, Plan 718, Southwest corner of Spanish Road and Oak Street, for automotive sales and service use.
- (g) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 33"—To revise Lot 9, Plan 2339, and Lot A, Plan 264, all in Section 1, Victoria District, for truck storage and servicing use.
- (h) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 34"—To revise Lot 3, Block W, Section 11, Victoria District, Plan 866, 3140 Harriet Road, for cabinet shop use.
- (i) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 35"—To revise Lot A, Plan 5322, the Western Portion of Lot 18 and the Eastern Portion of Lot 11, Plan 423, all in Section 27, Lake District, South side of Prospect Lake Road, for school use.
- (j) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 36"—To delete the following provision from the regulations applicable to the development of a hotel or motel on Part of Lot 1, Section 108, Lake District, Plan 3355, West side of the 4700 Block Patricia Bay Highway:
"(k) The said buildings must be situated on the same parcel of land as the sewage treatment plant and facilities referred to in the said Permit No. 112."
- (l) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 37"—To revise Part of Lot A, Section 28, Lake District, Plan 1823, Prospect Lake and Orchard Road, to Zone Area H-1 (Limited Commercial).
- (m) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 38"—To revise the North and South Parts of Lot 21 and the South-west part of Lot 22, Plan 771, Lots 1 and 2, Plan 1228, all in Section 22, Victoria District, and that part of the C.N.R. Right-of-way lying between McKenna Avenue and Quadra Street, South side of McKenna Avenue between Quadra Street and Borden Avenue, to Zone Area H-3 (shopping centre).
- (n) "Zoning By-law, 1962, Amendment By-law, 1965, No. 39"—To provide as follows:
1. Establishment of a new commercial recreation zone to be designated Zone Area H-4.
2. Defining of permitted uses and regulations applicable to said new zone.
3. Placement in the said new zone of all properties presently zoned for various types of commercial recreation use.

A copy of the proposed by-laws may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, 411 West Saanich Road, between the hours of nine o'clock a.m. and five o'clock p.m. on any weekday except Saturdays or statutory holidays.

Bid Being Made To Unseat MLA from Yale

By IAN STREET

An echo of the 1963 provincial general election in Yale constituency will be heard here Friday.

Seated candidate Irvine Corbett, who held the Yale seat from 1962 to 1963, has renewed his attempt to unseat incumbent William Hartley of the NDP.

A petition filed with the Supreme Court Dec. 31, 1963, will be reopened Friday in Victoria.

when a motion to set a date for the formal hearing will be held.

Gordon Dowling, NDP MLA and counsel for Mr. Hartley, filed his answers to the petition with the court registry here Wednesday. He said the hearing will probably not take place until October.

PROVINCIAL LAW

The petition was not heard at the time it was filed because provincial law says no such action can begin at the sitting of the legislature.

Mr. Corbett said Tuesday the petition had lain dormant primarily because of lack of funds to fight the case.

In the original count the seated candidate won the election by four votes, but a judicial recount gave the election to Mr. Hartley by six votes. An appeal to the B.C. Appeal Court failed.

Johnson Doubles Draft Call

Further 50,000 Troops Committed to Viet Nam

Moscow Calls It 'Colossal Risk'

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio Wednesday night said President Johnson is taking "a colossal risk" in boosting United States armed strength in Viet Nam.

The radio reported the increase in U.S. conscription and possibly higher military expenditures, and said it showed "a wide complex of measures which cannot but suggest the switching over of the country to a state of war."

In World Capitals

Many Seek Ways To End Conflict

By UPI

Moves for a negotiated end to the Viet Nam war were underway Wednesday in several capitals.

A Ghanaian envoy, Foreign Trade Minister Kwame Amah, was reported to have conferred in Hanoi with North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, according to Moscow's Tass news agency.

TAKES LETTER

Amah took Ho a letter from Ghanaian President Kwame Nkrumah, who was a member of the British-backed Commonwealth peace mission that had hoped to discuss the Vietnamese crisis with Ho and other leaders. But the Communists rejected the mission.

There was no indication in the Tass report of the topics Amah and Ho covered.

In Belgrade, U.S. roving Ambassador Averil Harriman and

Indian Prime Minister Shastri met in quick succession with President Tito. Viet Nam was believed to have been their major subject.

Shastri and Tito, leaders of the neutralist bloc, both advocate immediate Viet Nam peace talks. Tito was considered likely

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Johnson announced Wednesday another 50,000 American combat troops for the Vietnamese war — raising the total to 125,000 — and doubled the monthly U.S. military draft call to 35,000.

Additional troops will be needed later and sent the U.S. Congress will be asked for more money to meet rising costs resulting from the Viet Nam crisis, Johnson said at a televised press conference.

LONG-AWAITED

The troop buildup to 125,000 compares with a peak Korean War commitment of 400,000 by the U.S. It formed the hard news in the long-awaited presidential report on a week's high-level review of Viet Nam policy.

There has been speculation that 200,000 American troops may be in the worsening war theatre by the end of the year.

MUTE IMPACT

Johnson's statement and replies reflected a desire to mute the impact of the rising American commitment.

He pledged a continuing dedication to seeking peaceful resolutions anywhere any time despite the evidence that the Viet Cong insurgents, Communist North Viet Nam and China won't play ball except on their terms.

INEVITABLE

"We will not surrender and we will not retreat," he said at one point. "Once the Communists know, as we know, that a violent solution is impossible, then a peaceful solution is inevitable."

He said new U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is working out a program of more military and civilian aid from South Viet Nam.

Indonesian A-Test In November

JAKARTA (Reuters)—Indonesia will test its first atomic bomb in November.

Brig.-Gen. Hartono, director-general of the army logistics command, said the test would take place after the second Afro-Asian conference—scheduled to start in Algiers Nov. 5.

Vancouver Times

Mortgage Action Launched

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mortgage foreclosure action has been launched in British Columbia Supreme Court here against the Vancouver Times Publishing Co.

R. Burdon De Wolfe Investments Ltd. and J. F. De Wolfe, in a writ filed with the court, are seeking enforcement of foreclosure of a $390,000 mortgage made June 22, 1964.

The writ said the publishing firm, which owns the city's third daily newspaper, defaulted on payment of mortgage principal and interest which fell due June 1.

Jailbreakers Elude Police

EDMONTON (CP)—Police Wednesday hunted for a car reported stolen as they continued their search for two men who escaped Monday from the provincial jail at Fort Saskatchewan.

They maintained roadblocks and had watches set up at bus depots, railway stations, airports and Canada-United States border crossings.

Satisfaction—or New Strike

TWO-WEEK TRUCE BY B.C. MAILMEN

Postal workers on Vancouver Island and in Vancouver will continue to work for the next two weeks, but a new strike will start unless a satisfactory wage settlement is granted the unions in the interim report of Judge J. C. Anderson.

Judge Anderson, the federal commissioner probing the dispute, has promised his wage findings in 14 days, but his full report will take much longer.

BREATHING PERIOD

Vancouver letter carriers guaranteed the breathing period in the West Coast mail blockade by voting for a second time in favor of returning to work Wednesday. It was the Vancouver action in sending pickets to Victoria that closed the local service down.

But in a boisterous meeting the 300 carriers put a 14-day time limit on the deal, and said they will strike again if they don't like Judge Anderson's wage recommendations. Tuesday's vote, including all Vancouver personnel was 481-454 to return.

MAY STRIKE AGAIN

"If the Anderson report is not acceptable to us, we'll go out in full force for another strike," said Ray Andrus, Vancouver president of Federated Association of Letter Carriers.

While letter carriers in Vancouver haggled over whether or not to continue striking, letter carriers in Vancouver Island cities were out delivering a backlog of mail accumulated during the strike.

MOUNDS OF MAIL

Inside Island post offices, clerks sorted their way through mounds of mail.

Everything appears back to normal, but Island postal workers also are waiting for the Anderson report, and the judge's recommendations could put them on strike again.

Port Alberni postal workers sent a representative to Wednesday night's Vancouver meeting. He will report today.

WORKERS TORN

Port postal workers are torn between waiting for the Anderson report, or throwing in their lot with Montreal and going out on strike again.

Their representative's report will tip the scales today. Victoria strike leaders agreed that the next 14 days are the crucial ones for postal workers.

SUPPORT EXECUTIVE

"We stand behind our national executive," said Gerald Kenny, head of the local branch of the Canadian Association of Postal Employees.

Toronto Strike Feels Strongest Pressure

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An East-West split in the ranks of Canada's striking postal workers Wednesday made Toronto's 3,800 clerks and letter carriers the central target for efforts to end the unauthorized walkout.

The Toronto-area workers voted 1,475 to 933 to follow their Montreal colleagues and stay on strike but are likely to come under strong pressure from government officials and national union leaders to reverse their decision.

Another vote is scheduled for this morning at a meeting of Toronto's 2,200 postal clerks. The 1,200 letter carriers, members of the Toronto local of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, were invited to attend the meeting and vote.

Meanwhile the mountain of accumulated mail in British Columbia began to move for the first time in six days after decisions of postmen in Vancouver and Victoria to accept a return to work agreement.

NO REPRISALS

The agreement, hammered out in Ottawa Tuesday between the federal government and the Canadian Postal Workers' Brotherhood, contained a no-reprisal guarantee for workers returning to their jobs.

This was followed up Wednesday by a statement from Ontario Judge J. C. Anderson, appointed last week to investigate postal pay levels, saying he felt all post office employees deserve "a further substantial" pay increase on top of the $300

Postal Pay Research

Diefenbaker Demands Liberals Air Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker demanded Wednesday that the federal government make public the report of the pay research bureau on postal salaries.

He told reporters that he made a formal request for the civil service bureau's report after Revenue Minister Benson called him a liar and was told it is confidential.

This reply, he said, "makes a subterfuge" of Mr. Benson's and Prime Minister Pearson's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker was wrong in saying the pay research bureau recommended striking postal workers get an increase of $660 a year.

The Progressive Conservative leader said his demand for publication of the report "will be repeated," apparently when Parliament reassembles.

The government can end this strike by showing a reasonable attitude to the reasonable requests of reasonable men. "Instead of that, Canada is suffering from an ineffective and stumbling government which should have faced up to the postal workers' situation weeks ago."

Mr. Diefenbaker called for a system of collective bargaining for civil servants, with matters unresolved at the bargaining table to be submitted to a three-man panel headed by a Supreme Court of Canada judge for binding arbitration.

Negro Sells Racial Peace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—The unusual story of a Negro offering racial peace to a number of Alabama communities for a price was uncovered Wednesday.

Jacob James Israel, Negro public relations man, said he already had received $1,500 for negotiating racial troubles in Demopolis, Ala., and that an equal payment was due in the fall.

"Of course it's not black-mail," Israel said. "I'm offering a service to these communities and I don't like violence."

Israel, a husky man in his 40s, said he was "working" in a number of other Alabama towns, which he declined to identify. He also said that as a public relations and labor consultant, his office handles "various disputes in several states—Louisiana, Georgia, South and North Carolina."

He gave no specifics.

UPI learned that Israel's $1,500 fee was raised by 15 merchants in Demopolis who contributed $100 each after a direct proposition from Israel to the Demopolis city council was turned down.

One merchant described the offer:

"His first visit was about three months before our trouble started," he said. "Then, just after things got bad here, he made us the offer again."

He told us, "You thought you could do without me, didn't you Well, you couldn't."

As suddenly as they started, the demonstrations stopped and there have been no more. The merchant said that when the council rejected Israel's offer, Israel dropped his price from $5,000 to $3,000. Still the city council refused.

It was then, UPI learned, that Demopolis merchants joined to raise the first $1,500 payment to Israel.

That was no lady. It's Maier's two-year-old Afghan hound, Belden's Dhi-Mond.

Sterling Makes Recovery

LONDON (Reuters)—The pound sterling made its biggest recovery in weeks on foreign exchange markets today following new severe cuts in spending announced by Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government Tuesday.

But some members of the Labor party were reported shocked at the austerity of the plan aimed at strengthening the pound and easing Britain's balance-of-payments problem.

On the foreign exchange market the price of sterling went from $2.7910 to $2.7925 within an hour this morning—the highest it has been since June 14.

The London stock market, however, was slightly depressed awaiting a trend.

Noise Bothers Council

CAMPBELL RIVER — Noise-makers and speeders have come under the cold eye of Campbell River council.

"Speeders should be checked before someone is killed," said Coun. Art Clinton at this week's council meeting.

Others were more concerned over needless noise the public has to suffer.

Reeve Jack Lee suggested that the anti-noise bylaw should be standardized with other towns, and then enforced.

Council approved the school board's request for a crosswalk at the intersection of Birch Street and Third Avenue, for students at Cedar Elementary School.

For Lake Cowichan School Grounds

Council Okays Sprinkler

LAKE COWICHAN — Council has agreed to allow the high school here to install a sprinkler to water lawns, despite demands on the municipal water supply made by dry weather.

At Tuesday night's meeting council also:

- Decided to consider in 1966 purchase of two pumps for the sewer system.
- Donated $50 to Duncan's Island champion baseball team.
- Refunded money for an apparent fault in the municipally-owned public address system.
- And decided to remove a park drinking fountain which is "wasting water."

School board is considering purchase of a sprinkling unit, which will disperse 30 gallons each minute onto the thirsty lawns at the high school.

GAVE APPROVAL
Council gave approval to the board's use of municipal water for sprinkling.

Board representatives said the system would mean the high school lawn would only need watering once a week.

Council chairman Mrs. Mildred Child said the large sprinkling unit might use too much water, and she recommended sprinkling be done at night.

WOULD NOT AFFECT
Vic Palmer, works superintendent, told council use of the system at night would not affect the village's water supply.

Coun. Herb Halliday pointed out sprinkling will only be needed for another month, and next year council hopes to have a larger pumping unit.

PUMP UNITS
Council will consider for the 1966 budget purchase of two new sewage pumping units.

These units will be a 600-gallon-a-minute pump for main load, and a 300-gallon-a-minute pump on standby.

DONATION
Council made a donation to the Duncan Comets baseball team, to help pay the squad's expenses to the B.C. baseball tournament in Vancouver Thursday.

There are 18 players on the team, who last week won the Vancouver Island championship. Three of the players, Jim Juberville, Gerry Brown, and Gary Davis, are residents of Lake Cowichan district.

RENT REFUNDED
Also in baseball action, Lake Cowichan teams asked for and got a refund of rent they paid for the municipal public address system.

But village clerk W. A. Chappell suggested the baseball officials didn't know how to work the PA.

"WORKED PERFECTLY"
"It worked perfectly for the water ski championship Sunday," said Mr. Chappell.

But the diamond crew got their $5 back.

The clerk told council children are turning on water and leaving it on, at the drinking fountain in Riverside Park.

WASTE OF WATER
This waste of water prompted council to order removal of the fountain.

Members also learned the head of the fountain has been broken many times.

"This is too expensive to keep repairing or replacing," said Mr. Chappell.

Comox Valley Votes Today On Two Issues

COURTENAY — Comox Valley residents go to the polls today to decide whether the area will form a regional district and whether they want to pay $650,000 for a new St. Joseph's Hospital.

Tuesday night the issues were debated publicly for the last time before the vote. William Moore, Courtenay city manager and chairman of St. Joseph's Hospital board, addressed the meeting.

MOORE EXPLAINED

Mr. Moore explained the regional district set-up and then launched into the hospital picture going back five years when it was first realized that new facilities would have to be constructed.

In answer to a question from the floor, the speaker said if half of the area vote 'no' to the second question of supplying $50,000 for construction at Comox, the minister of municipal affairs would have to reconsider the whole question.

SEVEN MORE BEDS

He was also asked if the tender for the proposed hospital is accepted, would it meet the needs of the community. It was pointed out that the proposed hospital would have only seven more beds than the present one.

For the second time in as many nights it was suggested that the second question—raising $650,000 by taxation—was not legal and was in reality only a poll.

NOT FUSED

It was suggested by one speaker that such a statement had come from the assistant deputy minister, but the question was not pursued and no clarification was received by the meeting.

It was apparent that many farmers are becoming increasingly alarmed over the taxes levied on their property, which they consider to be already overtaxed.

Shawnigan Thefts Reported

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Some $150 worth of tools and about 50 long-play records were reported stolen Tuesday from the summer cottage of Leslie Bray, 1139 Johnson Street, Victoria.

Mr. Bray told police the articles were probably taken last week.

Another theft Tuesday night was reported at the Andrew Simard boating grounds on the west side of Shawnigan Lake.

Sawyer inspects his history-soaked safe.

Secrets Are Safe

NANAIMO—If Dan Sawyer's safe could talk it would have at least 117 years of yarns to spin.

The four-foot-high safe served the Hudson's Bay Company in its last fur-trading days, and went through the Fraser gold rush when safes sometimes had short lives.

Now it rests in the basement of Mr. Sawyer's home on the Yellow Point Road south of Nanaimo.

Mr. Sawyer has a letter from a previous owner, Charles S. Flood, that gives some of the highlights of the safe's life, but leaves many gaps.

The safe was made in San Francisco and shipped up the Fraser Canyon for the Hudson's Bay Company in 1848. At this time HBC was still involved in the fur trade here.

In 1850 the famous HBC's Bar was discovered at Yale and the gold rush was on. According to legend the Hudson's Bay Company factor at Yale had trouble with local Indian tribes around this time. He loaded the safe on a raft, and with his own belongings floated it down the Fraser to the company's fort at Hope.

Here the safe became part of Fort Hope and according to Charles Flood's letter remained until 1890 when the fort was dismantled.

The safe was purchased by W. D. Flood, Charles' father, and taken to the town named after him.

Eventually the Floods sold the safe to John Cadwallader who in 1954 brought it to the Island when he moved to Duncan. Mr. Sawyer, a lover of curios, bought the safe recently when Mr. Cadwallader died.

The strong box is still in working order. Dan Sawyer has the original key to the lock, which according to the manufacturers is fireproof and powderproof.

Johnson Doubles Draft Call

Further 50,000 Troops Committed to Viet Nam

Moscow Calls It 'Colossal Risk'

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio Wednesday night said President Johnson is taking "a colossal risk" in boosting United States armed strength in Viet Nam.

The radio reported the increase in U.S. troop strength and possibly higher military expenditures, and said it foresees "a wide complex of measures which cannot but suggest the switching over of the country to a state of war."

Many Seek Ways To End Conflict

By UPI

Moves for a negotiated end to the Viet Nam war were underway Wednesday in several capitals.

A Ghanaian envoy, Foreign Trade Minister Kwesi Amah, was reported to have conferred in Hanoi with North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, according to Moscow's Tass news agency.

TAKES LETTER

Amah took Ho's letter from Ghanaian President Kwame Nkrumah, who was a member of the British-backed Commonwealth peace mission that had hoped to discuss the Vietnamese crisis with Ho and other leaders. But the Communists rejected the mission. There was no indication in the Tass report of the topics Amah and Ho covered.

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Johnson announced Wednesday another 50,000 American combat troops for the Vietnamese war — raising the total to 125,000 — and doubled the monthly U.S. military draft call to 35,000.

Additional troops will be needed later and sent and the U.S. Congress will be asked for more money to meet rising costs resulting from the Viet Nam crisis, Johnson said at a televised press conference.

LONG-AWAITED

The troop buildup to 125,000 compares with a peak Korean War commitment of 400,000 by the U.S. It formed the hard news in the long-awaited presidential report on a week's high-level review of Viet Nam policy.

There has been speculation that 200,000 American troops may be in the worsening war theatre by the end of the year.

MUTE IMPACT

Johnson's statement and replies reflected a desire to mute the impact of the rising American commitment.

He pledged a continuing dedication to seeking peaceful negotiations anywhere any time despite the evidence that the Viet Cong insurgents, Communist North Viet Nam and China won't play ball except on their terms.

INEVITABLE

"We will not surrender and we will not retreat," he said at one point. "Once the Communists know, as we know, that a violent solution is impossible, then a peaceful solution is inevitable."

He said new U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is working out a program of more military and civilian aid from South Viet Nam.

Mortgage Action Launched

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mortgage foreclosure action has been launched in British Columbia Supreme Court here against the Vancouver Times Publishing Co. R. Borden De Wolfe Investments Ltd. and J. F. De Wolfe, in a writ filed with the court, are seeking enforcement of foreclosure of a $380,000 mortgage made June 22, 1964.

The writ said the publishing firm, which owns the city's third daily newspaper, defaulted on payment of mortgage principal and interest which fell due June 1.

Jailbreakers Elude Police

EDMONTON (CP)—Police Wednesday hunted for a car reported stolen as they continued their search for two men who escaped Monday from the provincial jail at Fort Saskatchewan.

They maintained roadblocks and had watches set up at bus depots, railway stations, airports and Canada-United States border crossings.

B.C. MAILMEN GRANT TRUCE

Postal workers on Vancouver Island and in Vancouver will continue to work for the next two weeks, but a new strike will start unless a satisfactory wage settlement is granted the unions in the interim report of Judge J. C. Anderson.

Judge Anderson, the federal commissioner probing the dispute, has promised his wage findings in 14 days, but his full report will take much longer.

BREATHING PERIOD

Vancouver letter carriers guaranteed the breathing period in the West Coast mail blockade by voting for a second time in favor of returning to work Wednesday. It was the Vancouver action in sending pickets to Victoria that closed the local service down.

But in a bolstering meeting the 300 carriers put a 14-day time limit on the deal, and said they will strike again if they don't like Judge Anderson's wage recommendations. Tuesday's vote, including all Vancouver personnel was 421-254 to return.

MAY STRIKE AGAIN

"If the Anderson report is not acceptable to us, we'll go out in full force for another strike," said Ray Andrus, Vancouver president of Federated Association of Letter Carriers. While letter carriers in Vancouver battled over whether or not to continue striking, letter carriers in Vancouver Island cities were out delivering a backlog of mail accumulated during the strike.

MOUNDS OF MAIL

Inside Island post offices, clerks sorted their way through mounds of mail.

Everything appears back to normal, but Island postal workers also are waiting for the Anderson report, and the judge's recommendations could put them on strike again.

Port Alberni postal workers sent a representative to Wednesday night's Vancouver meeting. He will report today.

WORKERS TORN

Port postal workers are torn between waiting for the Anderson report, or throwing in their lot with Montreal and going out on strike again.

Their representative's report will tip the scales today. Victoria strike leaders agreed that the next 14 days are the crucial ones for postal workers.

Toronto Strike Feels Strongest Pressure

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An East-West split in the ranks of Canada's striking postal workers Wednesday made Toronto's 3,000 clerks and letter carriers the central target for efforts to end the unauthorized walkout.

The Toronto area workers voted 1,475 to 83 to follow their Montreal colleagues and stay on strike but are likely to come under strong pressure from government officials and national union leaders to reverse their decision.

Another vote is scheduled for this morning at a meeting of Toronto's 2,200 postal clerks. The 1,200 letter carriers, members of the Toronto local of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, were invited to attend the meeting and vote.

Meanwhile the mountain of accumulated mail in British Columbia began to move for the first time in six days after decisions of postmen in Vancouver and Victoria to accept a return to work agreement.

NO REPRISALS

The agreement, hammered out in Ottawa Tuesday between the federal government and the Canadian Postal Workers' Brotherhood, contained a no-reprisal guarantee for workers returning to their jobs.

This was followed up Wednesday by a statement from Ontario Judge J. C. Anderson, appointed last week to investigate postal pay levels, saying he felt all post office employees deserve "a further substantial" pay increase on top of the $300

Postal Pay Research

Diefenbaker Demands Liberals Air Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker demanded Wednesday that the federal government make public the report of the pay research bureau on postal salaries.

He told reporters that he made a formal request for the civil service bureau's report after Revenue Minister Benson called him a liar and was told it is confidential.

This reply, he said, "makes a subterfuge" of Mr. Benson's and Prime Minister Pearson's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker was wrong in saying the pay research bureau recommended striking postal workers get an increase of $600 a year.

The Progressive Conservative leader said his demand for publication of the report "will be repeated," apparently when Parliament reassembles.

The government can end this strike by showing a reasonable attitude to the reasonable requests of reasonable men. "Instead of that, Canada is suffering from an ineffective and stumbling government which should have faced up to the postal workers' situation weeks ago."

Mr. Diefenbaker called for a system of collective bargaining for civil servants, with matters unresolved at the bargaining table to be submitted to a three-man panel headed by a Supreme Court of Canada judge for binding arbitration.

Negro Sells Racial Peace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—The unusual story of a Negro offering racial peace to a number of Alabama communities for a price was uncovered Wednesday.

Jacob James Israel, Negro public relations man, said he already had received $1,500 for negotiating racial troubles in Demopolis, Ala., and that an equal payment was due in the fall.

"Of course it's not blackmail," Israel said. "I'm offering a service to these communities and I don't like violence."

Israel, a husky man in his 40s, said he was "working" in a number of other Alabama towns, which he declined to identify. He also said that as a public relations and labor consultant, his office handles "various disputes in several states—Louisiana, Georgia, South and North Carolina."

He gave no specifics.

UPI learned that Israel's $1,500 fee was raised by 15 merchants in Demopolis who contributed $100 each after a direct proposition from Israel to the Demopolis city council was turned down.

One merchant described the offer:

"His first visit was about three months before our trouble started," he said. "Then, just after things got bad here, he made us the offer again."

He told us, 'You thought you could do without me, didn't you? Well, you couldn't.'"

As suddenly as they started, the demonstrations stopped and there have been no more. The merchant said that when the council rejected Israel's offer, Israel dropped his price from $6,000 to $3,000. Still the city council refused.

It was then, UPI learned, that Demopolis merchants joined to raise the first $1,500 payment to Israel.

That was no lady. It's Maier's two-year-old Afghan hound, Bolden's Dhi-Mond.
